A number of coal men from Ohio, West Virginia and Pennsylvania are in the city. The rate war begun by the Monon and the Chicago and Eastern Illinois railroads has been joined in by the Chicago and Alton, the Wabash and the Illinois Central roads. The effect of the reducing of the rates schedule began to be felt by the Eastern mine operators and large dealers. Protests did not avail and after several sessions in Columbus the coal men decided to come to Chicago to see what they could do to conserve their interests.

SUISUN, (Cal.,) Feb. 15.—(Special Dispatch.) The den of Counterfeiter Montipino, who was arrested hast Saturday, was found today by Sheriff Robinson. It was high on the side of a steep hill and was reached by a tunied. The place was covered with brush. In the tunnel were found a furnace made from a large pow-der can, crucibles, tools, lamp and cooking utensils. There was a supply of food and a quantity of charcoal. A small pipe to carry the smoke led through the ground several feet away into a thicket. On another hill was found a set of fine plaster molds for dollars, quarters and dimes, and also a bag containing spurious ceins in an unfinished state. Cooking utensils were also found here and meat, bread and vegetables. The officers de-clare that Montipino's arrest will break up one of the most dangerous gangs of counterfeiters on the Coast. They have been working here for at least two years. Their leader pretended to be half-witted. He came to Sulsua regularly to buy supplies and gave bogus money, which was so good that it escaped detection for a long time. The gang are also responsible old palace throneroom, which witnessed her coronation.

The deposed Queen spoke no word in her own defense, and the long statement read by her autorney, Paul Neumann, was so plainly directed to arouse foreign sympathy, and so full of errors of fact, that it fell flat. Even her strongest friends admitted she had made a poor showing, while the case against her is strong. Her diarry and the confessions of Charles Clark, who had charge of her household quards, after Nowlein left, showed the Queen knew all about the weapons which were originally buried in her grounds, and then dug up and oiled, just before the recent revolution, at the order of Sam

Nowlein.

Clarke testified that Nowlein left the Queen to go to Diamond Head, where Carter was killed. The diary shows, also, that she knew all the plans of the revolutionists, and approved them.

Her diary contains many damaging statements. She made an effort to burn it, as she burned other compromising papers. One entry in the diary excited much amusement. It records that Carter called and presented her with some fine photographic views of Chicago, the gift of President Cleveland.

The Queen's defense was a general denial of a knowledge of the conspiracy of arms in her household. She declared the wouldn't believe Clark under outh, the court to try her.

After the court adjourned, Paul Neumann, who evidently drafted the statement, said it had been prepared for foreign effect, and he intimated that the Queen hoped it would induce President Cleveland to interfere in her behalf. On the following day the court-martial threw out the passage in which the Queen declared that a minority, aided by United States naval forces, overthrew her government, and the passage in which she denies the right of the court to try her. There is much talk here over the probable protectorate by Admiral Beardslee, but, no good authority can be cited for the rumors. Beardslee is inspecting Pearl Harbor, but that is all the basis for the rumored protectorate.

THE QUEEN'S DIARY. The most damaging evidence against Liliuokalant will be her personal diary, which was found in her residence after her arrest. Whether this will be introduced and made public at her trial will depend very much upon the course pursued by her counsel in defending her case.

The ex-Queen recorded her thoughts, desires and impressions very freely, and if her diary could be published in full, it would make interesting reading, not only to Hawaiians, but also to the people in the United States. The champion of royalty seems to have been on very intimate and friendly terms with President Cleveland: an entry made during last summer ington to interview Freedom Clevenand, the ex-Queen records herself as favoring a waiting policy; confident that the American administration would interfere in her behalf. After Cleveland's answer to the commission, she became more aggressive and began to listen with favor to those urging an uprising on the part of the matives.

According to the diary, Rudolph Spreckels called to see her often, and is represented as advising her to fight it out. She did not agree with him, until during his last stay in Homolulu. He indicated that she could get plenty of money in San Francisco to buy arms and carry out a successful repellion. He is also represented as a willing agent of her ladyship.

The last entry of the diary was made December 28, 1894, and closed with: "Signed eleven commissions today." These were the commissions for the officers of the new government referred to in the testimony of her private secretary.

The documents have been concealed or destroyed, and her attorney has endeavored to prove that they never existed. This entry cinches the government's position.

The military court will probably bring be allowed freedom on her own recognizance.

The next case to be tried will be that of Jonah Kiancnole. He was a prince under the monarchy, and was to be king in case the rebellion was successful. The Queen was to addicate in his favor, in order to keep Princess Kiaulani from the throne. This fact was well known by the English residents, who have but little sympathy for the ex-Queen and her rubellious adherents.

The Warrimoo's departure for Victoria was delayed for two hours, in order to give Johnstone, Muller and Cranstoun, the banished men, an opportunity to see their respective counsels.

After the steamer sailed, Minister Wilifa boarded the 'Philadelphia, and had a conference with Admiral Beardslee.

Willis is still a thorn in the side of the government, and his every movement is watched anxiously, as it is feared that he may call the forces of the Philadelphia to his aid, in case the government decides to hang William Seward, one of the men condemned by the military court.

The Advertiser recently published an literial, commenting unfavorably upon the course of the American Minister in lation to Cranstour's deportation. F. Hatch, Minister of Foreign Affairs, it a letter to the editor, expressing the sirability of exercising caution in editial comments upon the official conduct the United States representative in Hatt.

of the United States representative in Hawaii.

The government is collecting evidence against Rudolph Spreckels, but no move will be made in his case until the authorities are absolutely certain that he was mixed up in the rebellion.

A rumor was stricted this morning to the effect that Carl Widemann, William Greig and Louis Marshall, three men convicted of treason, were to be deported to-day, along with a number of others. When told of the rumor, a cabinet officer stated that there was no truth in the story. He said that the government had no intention of sending the men named away. They will be kept in jail until the sentence of the military, court is carried out.

But one man will be sent on the Martposa. His name is E. Franz, aged 19, and is charged, with conspiracy.

On the steamer Australia, leaving here on the 23d inst., a number of men now under arrest will be allowed to leave the country, with the understanding that they cannot return without the permission of the government. In the meantime an act will be passed to cover their cases. It is understood that the law will prohibit their return.

will be passed to cotte their return.

Among the men who will be allowed to leave will be James Brown, Fred Wundenburg, George Ritman, John White, Charles Creighton, E. B. Thomas and F. H. Redward.

White and Ritman made the dynamite shells that were to be used by the rebels; Peterson and Creighton were both cabinet officers at one time; Wundenburg was disposed of sixty-five cases; it convicted sixty-two men, acquitted two, and one case, that of the Queen's, is pending.

Since last advices the court has tried twenty-one native rebels. A. V. Ashford, John Cummins, John Wise and Capt. Davies. John F. Bowler and V. V. Ashford have been found guilty of misprision of treason. Cummins and Davies both pleaded guilty to a charge of treason. The latter was the master of the steamer Waimanalo, the vessel that landed the erms for the rebels.

A well defined rumor says that Admiral Beardslee has instructions to raise the flag of the United States over Pearl Harbor. It is indicated that the United States government will take possession of the harbor under guaranteed treaty rights and virtually declare a protectorate over the islands. Admiral Beardslee is said to be vested with the authority necessary to carry out the programme.

C. C. Moreno, who takes a lively interest in Hawaiian affairs, recently wrote to Robert Wilcox, one of the condemned rebeleaders, saying that he had been assured by Senator Hawley and other prominent men that Cleveland and Willis were both ready to recognize the rebels if they were successful.

F. D. Walker, owner of the schooner Norma, which recently arrived from Victoria with a cargo of salmon, has been refused permission to leave the country, the authorities believing that the Norma landed a large supply of oplum on one of the islands. Walker has filed a protest with the British Minister. It is claimed the government has no evidence at hand to implicate Walker.

Now that seems the most absurd thing in the world to me.

The members of the New Jersey divisions are condident that their efforts to secure the national meet for Asbury Park will be successful. They now claim to have promises of support from delegates in all divisions of the league.

Delegates to the assembly will arrive in town on Sunday evening. If the Massachusetts members find that they can only have the choice of first vice-president or the meet it is assumed that they will take the former. It is thought that the Western wheelmen would readily consummate a deal with the New Jersey men for first vice-president in lieu of their support for the meet. and Mrs. McClosky is a very pleasing speaker. Among her remarks she said:

"Theories upon art, like the theory of all sciences, often abound in very beautiful and plausible subtlaties, which actual practice proves very difficult to be made applicable to the necessities of the work, and which, while they possess an illusive charm to fascinate the reader, have but little influence with the actual worker, the man who produces.

"At the present time we are passing through a period where there is much discussion as to what constitutes art. Some would forswear the academic entirely, others are content only with that degree of finish which is an absolute reproduction of nature fixed and immovable, while still a third sees the subject through a heaven-born genius, which talent, thoroughly cultured by academic training into manual dexterity, gives us a product which writers are too prone to term aesthetic, and intimate that it is beyond the limit of the handlwork of the Almighty.

"While the world of art offers a wide domain to the genius of man in the selection of themes which he desires to perpetuate, I shall dwell only on the requisites pertaining to the human figure.

"Portraiture is a distinct branch of art, and not within the greep of all who paint the figure with divine genius. To produce a portrait requires an abdication of self. Absolute truthfulness and obedience to the laws of science governing the outward manifestations, of the analogy existing between the brain and the facial muscles, and the artist must possess an intuition into the study of human nature, which is a talent separate and distinct from the artistic fire and susceptibility of cultivation."

Mrs. McClosky spoke of the necessity of retaining the individuality of a face, rather than the exact measurements of the internal case a face in repose is seldom natural. The careful selection of the background is something which must not be neglected, and a familiar pose, perfect in every detail, should not be striven for.

Stories About Hunting the California

Stories About Hunting the California Beast.

SAN DIEGO, Feb. 5. — (Special Correspondence.) Hunting the mountain lion in Southern California continues to be a sport which is enjoyed by many hunters. Although this animal is not ferocious in the sense that an African lion is ferocious, yet when cornered and in fear of losing its life it becomes an almost terrible antagonist. The lion's habitat is every State and Territory of the Union, and extends from Canada to Patagonia. The recent increase in the number of wild animals noted in Vermont, includes many of the puma or mountain lion. They do not differ materially in the East from the lions of the far Southwest of the United States. Dr. Mearns, of the Smithsonian Institution, in a recent trip in Arizona, killed mineteen of these lions and made careful observations as to their measurements, habits and other characteristics. The largest lion captured by Mearns measured eight feet from tip to tip. The largest lion ever captured, of which there is a record, measured ten feet four inches from tip to tip, but this is an exception. A hunter from this city, while stalking deer in the Mexican mountains, was surprised to have a large, black-tailed buck rush by him through the bushes, closely followed by a huge, mountain lion. If the matter of speed the buck was no match for the lion. Before the hunter could fire a shot the lion had pounced on the fore shoulder of the unlucky deer and the shot the deer's head hreaking the could fire a shot the lion had pounced on the fore shoulder of the unlucky deer and sunk his fangs into the innecent creature's neck. With his great front paw the lion threw back the deer's head, breaking the animal's neck and causing instant death. At the same moment the hunter fired and sent a ball through the lion and through the deer killing two birds with one stone, as it were. These lions frequently seek their prey about dawn and dusk. During the day they frequent shady, quiet places, and are seldom abroad at night. It has been known that when one of these lions was cornered by hunters, and its life in danger, the creature gave peculiar howls, which were howls of warning to companions in the vicinity.

Mr. Mosman of the Boundary Commishowls of warning to companions in the vicinity.

Mr. Mosman of the Boundary Commission tells of an experience with a mountain ilon whereby he nearly lost his life. "It was a moonlight night," said Mr. Mosman, "I was in a ramshhackle house out on the plains, attending to some coast survey work, and, hearing a noise in the rear of the house, and thinking that possible depredators were about, I took my revolver and went out to see what was the matter. In front of a shed in the rear of a bouse, hung high enough to be out of reach of the coyotes, was a quarter of fresh venison. I tooked up at the venison and eaw something black crouched on some timbers on which the venison hung. As a matter of chance I ahot at the dark shadow, supposing it to be some harmiess animal, and instantly sort of an avalanch of flesh shot past my head, knocking off my hat, and ran into the brush beyond. I returned to the house and went to bed. Next morning, when rectting my adventure to one of the guides, he remarked that I had narrowly escaped instant death. He had examined the footprints of the animal, which I had supposed to be a harmiess creature, and found them to be the footprints of a mammoth mountain Hon. One blow from that llon's paw would have made me a corpse."

that lion's paw would have made me a corpse."

The mountain lion, which formerly flourished, as before stated, in every State and Territory of the Union, is fast becoming extinct as civilization advances and the hardy settlers clear the land and cut down the forests. At present, in the Adirondacks, along the northern borders of the United States and along the Pacific Coast and in the far Southwest, are the only homes of the mountain lion to any great extent.

Throughout South America the lion roams and roars in undiminished numbers. The difference between the lion of the tropics and the lion of temperate zones is that the former is smaller and more cat-like than the latter. The mountain lion of Southern California resembles much in form and color, and the many other characteristics, the full-blooded African lioness, without having the stubborn courage of the African animal.

SCIENCE AND INDUSTRY.

THE FABLE OF STEAM-ENGINE INVENTION.

The Typewriter Cycle Under Fire-The Philosophy of Fences Some Monster Pumping Engines.

NEW YORK, Jan. 26.—(Special Correspondence.) The ability to compute figures in one's head is common, so far as ordinary actions are concerned, but the higher flights are rare and still remain inures in one's head is common, so far as ordinary actions are concerned, but the higher flights are rare and still remain inexplicable. Two peculiarities have to cooperate in the making of any famous "calculating boy." One is a special capacity for mental calculation; the other is a passion to exercise it. The celebrated mental arithmeticiars have all had their faculties developed early in life, and many began to calculate before they could read or write. As a general thing the gift is not inherited, and the talent is shown usually amid uhilkely surroundings. Francis Galton has made some interesting observations on the differences between the two most noted calculators living today, both of whom are about 26 years old, Inaudi and Diamandi, both of whom are exciting attention. Inaudi, a Piedmontese, performs his mental sums wholly, or almost wholly, by imagined sounds, one, two, thee, etc.; Diamandi, a Greek, attains the same end almost wholly by imagined figures, as 1, 2, 3, etc. The careful testing of these two men and the analyses and comparisons of the results, show the strangs unlikeness of human minds in the above well-marked features, accompanied, it may be, with a nearer likeness in those deeper and more obscure qualities which are exceedingly difficult to grasp. It is clear to Mr. Galton that the conclusions arrived at, after prolonged and careful experiments with Inaudi in France, were quite justified; namely, that he performs his long sums almost wholly by his auditive imagination, supplemented possibly by the motive, or gesture sense, but that the visual form of imagination was practically absent during the calculations. His case if an extremely rare one, and proportionately valuable for study. On the other hand, Dimandi is an excellent example of the common type of mental calculators, who work almost wholly by the visual imagination; although the visual memory, even of a man who is so exceptionally gifted in that ways Dimand by no means resembles actual vision either in its accuracy or its completene as in any other, but he has in some obscure way to puzzle the figures out. When another table of twenty-five figures is taken, in which the figures are variously colored, Diamandi's power of ne-presenting colors being about as strong as that of representing form, he has no difficulty in learning them, but he does it by two successive operations, first learning the figures and then the colors, and he is consequently twice as long over his task. This could hardly be the case if the visualized schedule had the completeness of an "after image," or of a photographic plate.

THE TYPEWRITER CYCLE UNDER THE TYPEWRITER CYCLE UNDER THE TYPEWRITER CYCLE UNDER FIRE.

One of the latest combinations of modern ideas is found in the typewriter cycle, which is a special typewriting machine mounted on a bleycle for use in war. The operator sits astride his "bike," which, when not running, is steadied by two light props thrown out sidewise. He then receives messages in various ways and copies them singly or in multiple. An expert operator is able, with the typewriter, to make a duplicate or stencil more rapidly than several printers can set up the same amount of matter in type. From such a stencil as many as 1000 copies can 'be reproduced easily; and what is true of writing is equally so of maps, plans or diagrams. During a recent military tournament in England, a typewriter-cyclist took part in twenty-eight mimic battles, without a single mishap, and at the direction of the commanding officer, rode his machine from time to time in and out of the various lines of gun carriages and other obstructions. Messages were signalled from balloons and promptly typewritten and then conveyed to the rear by another novelty—a trained war dog. When Shakespeare spoke of letting loose the dogs of war, this curious combination of utilities could hardly have been in his mind. The typewriter can be easily unshipped from the wheel and set on an ordinary table.

THE PHILOSOPHY OF FENCES. FIRE

THE PHILOSOPHY OF FENCES. Robert Grimshaw in roaming around Robert Grimshaw in roaming around Europe notes the universal use of neat hedgerows as a fence to fields and pastures. He says it is a sturdy and sightly barrier and gives great privacy besides being legally "horse-high, pig-tight and bull-strong." Mr. Grimshaw calculates that a great many American fences have cost more than the land they inclose, to say nothing of their uglimes. Thus a square field of an acre takes about 330 feet of fencing, whereas another field of an acre, $30 feet by 51 7-8 feet requires 1763% feet; and a quarter of an acre in a square field takes 415 feet, while a smaller oblong field would take as much. Moreover, the principle on which we often act in the matter of fencing is that, if, one citizen to whom freedom means disrepard of others' rights has a cow worth $40 in a community of a hundred persons, the other ninety-hine must have ninety-nine fences at a cost of perhaps more than $10,000 to keep that cow off their property. Europeans require the man with the cow to do the fencing, and the onus of restricting the beast is on him. The result is a better maintenance all round of fences and the use of solid hedgerows, which, in southern parts take the shape of the prickly cactus, nature's own barbed wire.

MONSTER PUMPING ENGINES.

The three new sewage pumping engines for Frovidence, R. I., will each have a turope notes the universal use of neat

The three new sewage pumping engines for Providence, R. I., will each have a daily capacity of 36,000,000 galions. They are said to be the biggest piston pumping engines in the world, with the exception of the enormous 60,000,000 one at the Calumet and Hecla mines. There is a 30,000,000 engine at Rotterdam, Holland, and Chicago-has been getting bids on a 30,000,000-gallon triple expansion one. The Providence trio are not, however, the most powerful of their size, as they only work against a head of twenty-zeven feet. The movement toward the use of pumping engines of larger capacity is an important one; the advantages gained are increased duty, reduction in space occupied and in first cost, and reduction in the cost of attendance, since it requires about as large a staff to operate a 5,000,000-gallon engine as one of 30,000,000-gallons capacity. As a matter of interest it is worthy of record that whereas three or four years ago there was hardly a triple-expansion pumping engine in the country, at present nearly every engine of very large size is being built with a triple-expansion steam end.

A NEW STYLE OF CONCRETE SIDE-

A NEW STYLE OF CONCRETE SIDE—WALK.

Some 200,000 yards of a new pavement have been laid in Brooklyn, N. Y. A bottem course of dry cinders, about 12 inches thick, is laid, and upon this is a layer of concrete about 4 indhes thick, composed of three parts of granulated granite, or sharp gravel, four parts of one and a half stone and one part Portland cement. On this concrete is worked a facing about one inch thick, composed of granulated granite, a small percentage of silicious grit, Portland cement and carbon. The purpose of the granulated granite mixed with silicious grit is to prevent the surface from becoming slippery. This concrete is used not only for sidewalks, but for stable flooring, and the paving of public buildings, including the armories of two regiments in Brooklyn. It is also used for making sewer pipe. It has been in use at the New York Custom House, and is to be used in the new terminal stations of the Brooklyn bridge. The cost ranges from 25 to 35 cents per square foot, depending largely upon the distance the material has to be hauled and the amount of work that has to be done preliminary to laying the pavement. The concrete has been used experimentally for street paving, one section having been laid with it at Twentieth street and Greenwood Cemetery, Brooklyn, and is in fair condition after service under heavy traffic. In this case the concrete is about six inches thick, and at the middle of the street the surface is divided into rectangular blocks by deep grooves. For such work, however, it is necessary that the street should be closed for traffic for a sufficiently long time to allow the concrete to become thoroughly set and hard.

ANOTHER MISSING LINK.

Dr. E. Dubois, of the army service of the Dutch Indies, reports from Java the discovery of some important "missing link" evidence. Some fossil remains recently upturned in the andesitic tuffs of the island are regarded as idicating the existence there of an intermediate form between man and the anthropoid apes. The bones of this erect and upright skeleton include the upper part of a skull, a very perfect femur, and an upper molar tooth.

STOLE A LETTER.

Young Man Charged with a Serious

Offense.

A boyish young man named Harry Miller, was arrested late last evening on Spring street, for violating the United States postal laws, and spent the night in the City Prison, whence he will be taken this morning by Deputy Marshal Oakes for imprisonment in the Federal cell at the County Jail.

The crime for which he is accused is one of the most serious violations of the postal laws and regulations, and a severe penalty is attached. Yesterday Charles W. Dilley, a resident at the Grand Central, with whom Miller had been associating, swore to a complaint before Commissioner Van Dyke, charging the young fellow with taking a letter from the postoffice addressed to him (Dilley,) and opening it, knowing previously what it was to contained, an order issued by the Denver and Rio Grande Express Company for $9, payable to Charles W. Dilley. This letter and contents he is charged with having "opened, secreted and embezzled."

H. P. Thrail, the postoffice inspector, who worked up the case, swore out a similar complaint, and Commissioner Van

H. P. Thrail, the postofice inspector, who worked up the case, swore out a similar complaint, and Commissioner Van Dyke issued the warrant of arrest.

Dilley engaged to look out for Miller and noint him out to an officer as soon as he saw him on the streets. This he did on Upper Spring street, and Officer Johnson took the culprit to the central station for safe-keeping.

Dilley was rather sorry he had caused his whilom friend's arrest, after the latter was jailed. He had not realized the seriousness of the offense and what a grave matter it is to tamper with a letter not your own. Owing to this reluctance of the complaining witness, there may be some allowance made for the prisoner.

The north coast of Egypt has been guarded by a lighthouse since 300 B.C., when Ptolemy Philadelphus, the Greek King of Egypt, and one of the successors of Alexander the Great, built the so-called Pharos of Alexandria. FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

OFFICE OF THE TIMES OFFICE OF THE TIMES.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 15, 1895.

According to the Investor, the cost of carrying on the city government for the month of January was $52,615, which does not include a dollar of interest on bonded indebtedness, mor of the expenditures made by the Board of Education on account of the public schools, nor of the Public Library expenses, these latter expenditures being made under orders of the respective boards. The total includes, however, $4240 for the surchase of three chemical engines for the ire department, which is the only item of a permanent character on the list. When this amount is added the public school and library expenses and the large sums all the respective to the surchase of the control of of t

The following information in regard to the savings banks of the United States is condensed from the annual report of the Comptroller of the Currency:

In 1860 there were 278 banks, with 693,-870 depositors, and $199,277,504 of deposits. The average of each depositor was $215.13, the average to each person in the United States was $4.75. In 1870 the number of banks was $17, number of depositors 1,-630,846, the total deposits, $549,847,358, the average to each depositor $337.17, and to each inhabitant, $14.26. In 1880 the number of banks was $29, number of depositors, 2,335,582, total deposits, $819,106,973, the average of each depositor, $350.71, and to each inhabitant, $16.33. In 1890 the number of banks was $21, number of depositors, 4,258,893, total deposits, $1,524,844,506, average to each depositor, $358.04, to each inhabitant, $24.35. In 1893 the number of banks was 1030, number of depositors, 4,830,599, and 1031, and 1032, a tant, $24.85. In 1893 the number of banks was 1030, number of depositors, 4,830,599, total deposits, $1,785,150,957. average to each depositor, $369.55, and to each inhabitant, $26.63. It is a curious fact that the average to each inhabitant in 1893 was a trifle in excess of the average currency of the country, which shows that the saving of the people at that date absorbed the entire circulating medium of the country.

Every report that comes from Florida appears to emphasize the sweeping character of the calamity that has befallen that State. Not only are the oranges all frozen and the young growth of the trees killed, so that there is no prospect for a crop next essuon, but many persons express the belief that even the old trees have been killed. In some sections of the State there is already talk of cutting down the groves and planting the ground to other crops.

As with oranges, so with the other citrus fruits of Fforida. The lemon groves, which were becoming a source of large profit, are in the same condition as the orange groves—dead. The pinapple plantations have also been greatly injured, if not destroyed. In the Indian-river country, where are located the principal pine farms, where the mercury fell to 22 deg. above, the pinapple plants were in bloom, just the stage in which they are most susceptible to the cold, and it is the general opinion that they have been rulined.

Then too, there were the vegetables, of which an immenso, acreage had been planted. They, like other things, are dead. After the December freeze many fruit-growers, despairing of the outlook, planted their orange and lemon groves to vegetables, noping to recoup, but with the blizzard of last week their hopes vanished.

The amount of damage done by the freeze in various of the outlook of the country of planted their orange and lemon groves to vegetables, hoping to recoup, but with the bilizzard of hast week their hopes vanished. The amount of damage done by the freeze is, variously estimated. Nobody places it at less than $10,000,000, and there are some who say that it will be much greater, as the capital invested in fruit-growing in Florida is not less than $30,000,000. Now that the weather is moderate throughout the East, the demand for oranges is becoming very brisk, and it will keep growers and shippers busy from now on for several weeks to fill orders. A considerable amount of fruit is being handled by commission firms outside of the exchianges, and these are said to be outting prices in some cases. However, in a year like this there is a little need of "shaving" prices, as there will be business enough to go around and give every one a chance. Some of the members of the exchange seem to think that the exchange price might be raised a little, but the dechange is doubtless acting wisly in refusing to quote high prices at the opening of the season, which might have the effect of checking the demand. It is better to let the market make a natural and healthy movement as the demand increases, which it undoubtedly will do.

The new system of reckoning freight on oranges which was to have gone into effect yesterday, will not be adopted by the railroads. In consequence of the vigorous opposition on part of the orange men the railroad companies have agreed to reckon freight on all oranges at seventy-two pounds per box, instead of charging for the actual weight. This will effect a considerable saving to the orange-growers of this section.

GENERAL BUSINESS TOPICS.

There is a movement on foot to organize a mining board in Los Angeles, to be cona mining board in Los Angeles, to be constituted something like the Chamber of Commerce, but to deal entirely with mining matters. The business which is carried on by the chamber is so extensive that it cannot give to the mining industry alone as much time and attention as its growing importance in this section war-

It is an undoubted fact that the mining industry of Southern California is in a more backward condition as regards development than any other of the resources of this section, even including manufacturing. There is a wealth of mineral resources scattered through the territory between the Mexican line and Santa Barbara, which is little appreciated, even by most of our own people, so that it cannot be expected that strangers should know much on the subject. Such a mining bureau as is contemplated could do much, not only in stimulating the industry at home, but in making known abroad the opportunities which are open for investment in this line. Should the State Mining Bureau be abolished—a move which would apparently be most unwise—the value of such an organization would be still more marked. The institution might also succeed in having work taken up again on the smelter which came to a full stop a year ago.

Such a mining bureau would not, of course, confine itself to the precious metals, but would also handle such important deposits as those of marble, building stone, rock salt, etc., which are found there and there in great richness throughout this section. It might also include the petroleum industry, although that is rapidly assuming such importance that it will probably soon have some kind of an organization of its own to represent the produces and dealers.

From time to time attention will be paid in this column to the numerous mineral deposits of Southern California, which are now being developed, or awaiting development, in order to add their quest to the income of this favored section.

Among the by-products of the orange industry in some sections is orange cider, which is manufactured on quite a copy siderable scale from the small and inferior oranges. Such industries as these, while each of them is not of very great importance, amount in the aggregate to large figures, and give employment to a great many people. A correspondent saks The Times for a good recipe for the manufacture of orange cider. Will some person while its informed on the subject supply one?

THE COUNTRY'S OUTLOOK.

We do not question the value of nodern civilization, nor its tendency toward the unlifting of the race. Yet dern civilization has many phases which it is not pleasant to contemplate and which lead us to the conclusion that human nature has a good many defects which need remedying, and to question, also, if civilization, of itself alone, is sufficient to develop and educate the higher moral faculties of men to such a degree as to insure them as a controlling force. Civilization, of course, quickens the moral sense of men, and draws them away from barbarous tendencies. In a civilized community we look for of those inhuman practices which characterize the savage. Men are not expected to take delight in forturing those among their fellowmen whom they may regard as ene-mies. Yet if we look at the criminal record in this country for 1894, we can but arrive at the conclusion that all of the savage has not yet been eliminated from our nature, and that there is room for reform in a good many directions in our individual and national life. The barbarism of history does not wholly lack a counterpart in the life of today, and modern civilization needs some help in the work of educating the conscience and subduing effectually the evil tendencies of human nature. In reviewing the criminal record for the past year, the Atlanta Constitution states that, in 1894, there were in this country 4912 suicides, an increase of nearly 500 over the year previous. The hard times, and the dency resulting there doubtless will account for many of these, but the number of those weary of life and ready to lay it down at any cost, is fearfully large for a land where civilization is at its best and the conditions of life most satisfac

In addition to this, last year 9800 persons died of violence, an increase over the year previous of 3285. Only 132 persons were hanged, and 91 of these-a tremendous percentage-were in the South, which boasts of its superior civilization, and most of these

According to the Chicago Tribune's record there were 190 lynchings last year, and of these 166 were in the South. The Tribune also gives these startling figures: "The embezzlements and defalcations in the United States during the last year amount to the largest total of any year since 1878, when the Tribune began reporting them in annual summary. The aggregate is $25,234,122, being 26 per cent. greater than the $19,929,692 reported for 1893, and 14 per cent. greater than the $22,154,000 reported for 1884, which was the largest since 1878# till it was surpassed last year. The number of embezzlements was 629. these 44 were for sums more than $50,000 and less than $100,000 sach, 37 for more than $100,000, 4 for more an $500,000 and less than a million each, and 4 each of which exceeded a million dollars. The largest month's record in the year was the $4,600,000 of August, and the smallest the $677,-047 for October. The greatest aggregate for embezzlement for any one State was the $9,147,379 for New York, and the least reported was the $2500 for Florida; but the record is clear for Nevada, Arizona, the Dis-trict of Columbia and South Carolina.

"The amount embezzled last year," it is added, "was the largest ever reported in our history, and it would seem that the penalties of the law no longer frighten those who are tempted drawn from it: We are living too fast, and there is a growing love of luxury and of money which points to danger for us in the future unless such tendency is suppressed.

DR. ABBOTT'S HETERODOXY.

Rev. Dr. Lyman Abbott, pastor of Plymouth Church, Brooklyn, is developing a type of heterodoxy several de grees in advance of his distinguished the policies and the legislation of their predecessor, Henry Ward Beecher, 'In party forced this exigency upon Messrs. the course of a recent address he ad-Cleveland and Carlisle. But they are mitted that he believes in evolution. other leaders of their party. Some of and confessed that he regards one portion, at least, of the Old Testament as the men who are now abusing them legendary. Referring to the biblical and theological ideas of man's origin are equally as guilty as they, if not and Adam's fall, he said:

and Adam's fall, he said:
"I am an evolutionist. Frankly, I believe Genesis on the fall of man to be an ancient legend, which a great writer took, as Tennyson took the Arthurian legends and rewrote it in order that he might write a moral and spiritual lesson. I think that Hebrew people believe the fall of man affected people believe the fall of man affected the whole human race. I think Paul believed so; at all events, Paul used that belief in his arguments and teachings with the Hebrew people in his writing, but when he came to speak of sin, as he does in the seventh chapter of Romans, he has nothing to say about the fall; nothing to say about the fall; nothing to say about original sin. His prophecy is on an entirely different level; it is in every respect consistent with the notion that man started out of the germ and has grown through animal conditions to his present status." his present status."

Dr. Abbott appears to be drifting rapidly onto the shoals of Ingersollism His admissions are tantamount to a denial of the inspiration of the scriptures, as well as a denial of the Bible account of the origin of man. In fact, his admissions, if followed out to their ultimate deductions, amount to a repudiation of the whole structure of the Christian religion; for the sup structure of Christianity must fall if the substructure of the Hebraic scriptures be destroyed. Mr. Abbott may find himself the defendant in a trial for heresy if he isn't a little more careful about his utterances.

THE GREAT EASTERN STORM.

According to the chief of the Weather Bureau in Chicago, says the Tribune, the cold wave which swept over the entire country east of the Rocky Mountains last week started on Wednesday morning in Montana, By sunset of that day it had extended eastward to the Mississippi River and southward to Texas, with a fall of 20 leg. to 50 deg. in the temperature at different places. Thursday morning the wave had advanced eastward to the Alleghany Mountains and southward to the Gulf of Mexico, at which time the mercury was 48 deg. below zero at St. Paul, 2 deg. below at Abilene Tex., and 20 deg. above at Galveston, the latter being 12 deg. below the freezing point. With this came a heavy fall of snow and a northwest gale ranging from thirty to forty miles an hour over the whole area of the cold wave. Friday morning the storm and the cold had reached the Southern and Gulf States, including Florida, the temperature near the coast having fallen more than 40 deg. in twenty-four hours. At that time the line of zero temperature passed due west from the Atlantic Coast to Pittsburgh, curved through Atlanta to Little Rock, Ark., and then through Dodge City, Iowa, to Miles City, Mont., and north into the British pus-

The storm struck New York and England Thursday night with a wind velocity of seventy miles per hour, the result being a complete tie up of railroad traffic and an accumulation of ice in the channels to the sea, which threatened immense de struction of vessel property and loss of life. To add to the horror, the entire New England coast was swept Friday morning by a vast tidal wave, which also wreaked its fury on est of Nova Scotia and neighbor ing islands. Reports from several enormous height, coming in like an ice capped wall, forcing many thousand of persons to flee for their lives. Undoubtedly it must have caused a terribly great destruction of vessels, the full extent of which yet has to be ascertained.

Much of the abuse that is being heaped upon President Cleveland by the press of both parties, because of his action in the matter of the bond issues, is undeserved. Mr. Cleveland is not individually responsible for the "predicament" in which his administration finds itself. It is the fault, rather, of the fiscal system for which the Democratic party has contended, and which it has finally succeeded in seem that the penalties of the law no longer frighten those who are tempted or driven to steal."

Altogether this is not a very white record of our boasted civilization, and there is but one conclusion to be on bonds to pay the current expenses Mr. Cleveland and government. Secretary of the Treasury have been forced by the exigencles of the situation to do what they have done. The depletion of the reserve and the constant demands upon the treasury for money compelled the borrowing of oney on bonds in order to maintain the credit of the government, which would long since have been wrecked but for their action. It is true that no more responsible for this than

The Pittsburgh Dispatch maintains that, under the act of 1878, the treasury is not obliged to reissue the legal-tender notes, but that they may be kept in the redemption fund until exchanged for gold. The law referred to will hardly warrant this forced construction. It expressly provides that, when any of the legal tenders are redeemed, "they shall not be retired, canceled or destroyed, but shall be reissued and paid out again and kept in circulation." The law was passed with the expressed intent of preventing any contraction of the currency, or any further retirement of the greenbacks. However embarrassing it may be. it is a law and must be obeyed.

But these notes are not required to be paid out immediately, and if there had been "a comfortable surplus" in the treasury, they might have been retained for some time after redemption, during the past year, and dis bursed in such manner as not to find their way back for some months to the money centers, where they could be used over again to deplete the re-

As for the Sherman notes, the law relating to their reissue is permissive, but not mandatory, and they might have been retired if the treasury had had money enough on hand to pay current expenses. But the truth of the matter is that the government has been "hard up" for more than a year past, and has been obliged to pay out all moneys that came into the tressury almost as fast as received. The money borrowed has been borrowed as much to meet current expenses as to maintain the gold reserve. The lat-ter has merely been made the scapegoat of the several bond issues. At the municipal election held yesterday, on the proposed charter amendments the total number of votes cast was small, being only 2347. Of these, 395 were cast for and 1952 were cast against the amendments, or a majority against of 1557. The vote. as will thus be seen, was about as four to one against the amendments. This i a popular verdict against the amendments, in the form in which they were submitted to the voters, which we be lieve would have been reversed had the original plan of munic ipal government agreed upon been submitted to the voters. The thoughtful voters of the city recognized the Councilmanic mutilation of the plan and governed themselves accordingly. The combined efforts of the hebetudinous Herald and the Jim Crow Oxpress to induce voters to cast their ballots for the amendments re sulted, as above shown, in a total year of the combined influence of those would-be newspapers. Huh! The effect of the adverse vote in Congress on the gold-bond question was reflected yesterday in the London market in a general weakening of American securities. As a result, we shall probably have in the near future the return of a considerable vol ume of these securities for realization This will mean another drain of gold to Europe, and a further drain of gold from the treasury. As a matter of fact, the foreign capitalists who have furnished a part of the latest loan can draw this gold back again, if they so desire, by setting the endless chain in motion through the medium of these American securities held abroad. The effect of the vote in the House was also felt adversely in the New York stock market, though not in so marked a degree as in London.

The Call remarks that "It looks as if los Angeles would meet us at Fresne and make the line a thoroughfare."

The Department of Agriculture has prepared a table showing the shrinkage in value of some of the staple farm products in 1894 as compared to 1892. IN SOCIAL SPHERES.

Miss Alden of West Twenty-third street gave a delightful reception last evening at Kramer's Hall. The cosy rooms were beautifully decorated. The ballroom was entirely in pink. Festoons of pink drapery entirely in pink. Festoons of pink drapery were suspended from corners and the sides of the walls to the center of the celling where two white doves held the ends in their beaks, directly back of these an enormous heart made of roses was hung. Strings of hearts and gauze draperies were placed at intervals on the walls, while the piano was adorned with smilax, ferns, carnations and roses.

The reception-room was filled with masses of roses, carnations, and potted plants, while the grill work over the doors was trellised with smilax. The prevailing cotor in the supper-room was yellow, and draperies of that hue were used, smilax also being in evidence.

In the hall a cosy nook was constructed of bamboo matting, forming a secluded spot, where a divan, easy chairs and cushions made a delightful place to rest. This was gorgeously trimmed with the brilliant poinsetta flowers, which covered the walls; wreaths of smilax completed the effect. The hall was made beautiful with palms and potted plants.

The dance programmes were especially artistic and dainty, being in the shape of valentines in all sorts of pretty and unique designs. In fact, nearly all of the decorations were made to conform to this idea. Lowinsky's Orchestra furnished the music, and before the dancing, a short concert was given.

Miss Alden was most becomingly gowned in bink satin striped tulle over pink silk, cut en train and decollete, and wore diamonds. She was assisted in receiving by Miss Humphreys, in whose honor the affair was given, and who looked charming in white silk; Miss Ellis, in a handsome gown of pale blue brocaded silk, and Miss Craig, also in pale blue silk.

Nost of the prominent society people were present.

SPRINSTERS' WHIST CLUB.

The "Spinsters' Whist Club" was delightfully entertained last Thursday evening by Miss Mabel Longley at her residence on South Flower street. The house was beautifully decorated; smilax, potted plants and various evergeens were arranged very artistically. Large numbers of paper hearts adorned the walls, representing the various types present, while one, design consisted of a group of twelve various-sized red hearts representing the "Spinsters," surrounded by a multitude of arrows all directed toward them; the engagement of two of the members being emphasized by two arrows having reached their mark, showing that the club motto, "Hope on, Hope Ever," is not in valn. Partners were chosen by the gentlemen matching hearts with the ladies, the play resulting in Miss Perry and Mr. Cariton winning the first prizes, while Miss Thorpe and Dr. Murphy captured the consolations. Among those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Albert S. Longley, Mrs. Greene, the Misses Longley, Carr, Wallace, Misses Pepper, Carlton, Dodge, Thorpe, Langstaff, Red, Heinman, Perry, Messrs. Tolfrey, McGarry, Horton, Wankowski, Ralph Day, Ad Day, Desmond, Tuthall, Murphy, Cariton, Widney, Reed, Meyers and Binford.

ST. VALENTINE'S PARTY. The Misses Buell gave a delightful St Valentine party on Thursday night at their home on Main street. There were a large number of guests present who enjoyed themselves exceedingly. One feature of the evening's entertainment was the untangling of a net work of pieces of twine, covering the entire area of a large hall and supposedly placed there by Cupid. After a patient struggle and much merriment the knots were all untied, much to the delight of those present, each of whom found a valentine at the end of his or her respective string. Refreshments were then served, and the rest of the evening passed off pleasantly with music, dancing and social converse. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Dudley, Mr. and Mrs. Archibald, Mr. and Mrs. Warren, Dr. and Mrs. Holland, Mmes. Kellogg, Pierson, Spears, Andrews, Knolte, Adkins, Misses Plambeck, Janet Plambeck, Thompson, Schotte, Fellows, Hunter, Holland, Andrews, Heines, Begry, Wilde, Jessie Wilde, Keyes, Messrs, Lewis, Berry, Hart, Holland, Ballas, Caughey, Osgood, Jesse Mulryan, Cook, Smith, Perry, Bronson, Garrett, Brookman, Glass, Jones, Turner, Whitney, Peirson.

SHAKESPEARE CLUB. SHAKESPEARE CLUB.

The meeting of the Shakespeare Club was held Tuesday morning, as usual, in the Friday Morning Club rooms, and nearly all the members were present, notwithstanding the storm. Mrs. Steer gave a history of the period between the reigns of King John and Henry III. Mrs. Owen gave a brief sketch of the lives of Chaucer and Wyckliff; "Watt Tyler's Rebellion" was dwelt upon by Mrs. McClure. This work is preparatory to the study of the play of "Richard II," the first act of which will be taken up next Tuesday morning. Miss Boyce and Miss Williams read selections from the fourth and fifth acts of "Much Ado About Nothing."

The Discussion Club met in the Friday Morning Club rooms Thursday evening at 7:45 o/clock. A brief review of the work in parliamentary usage, which has been done, was given. Miss Kelso was made chairman for the evening. A discussion of the resolution for the division of California, postponed from the last meeting, was finished, the sense of the club being that they favored the division of the State. Permanent organization was discussed, and a committee was appointed to report in two weeks upon the subject. It was then resolved "that Congress should foreclose the mortgage on the Union Pacific Railroad," which resolution will be discussed next Thursday evening. DISCUSSION CLUB.

"WASHINGTON, Feb. 15, 1895.—To Charles M. Shortridge, Editor of the Call, San Francisco: There has been much and favorable talk among the members of the Republican National Committee as to San Francisco as the location of the national convention in 1896. Based on arrangements being made for low fares and quick special trains I have personally believed it would be both a wise and popular thing to do. Other great national associations have gone to the Coast to hold their national gatherings and all were with happy results. I think it would be good for the Republican party thus to hold its next convention among people recognize the far Republican West and to hold its next convention among people so broad and national in spirit and all such splendid and devoted Americans. If arrangements can be made I think discussion of it in the public press would show the proposition to be so popular that the National Committee at its meeting in November or December next would respond to the popular will and choose San Francisco as the seat for the convention. The one-brigade advocates, who claim to voice the rank and file sentiment, say that reorganization means one brigade; that three brigades mean no reform, and that the clashing of authority that has been so criticized in the past will again occur should three brigades be ordered out. The three brigadiers lopped off are the inoffensive ones, were in no one's way at Sacramento during the strike of July last. So radical are some of the one-brigade advocates that they say the National Guard might as well' remain as it is as to be made into three brigades. The Matter of Storm Water on Pico Street Discussed at Important Business to Come Befor the Finance Committee of the Council—Matters at the Courthouse.

The charter amendment election did not interfere to any great extent with the transaction of business at the City Hall yesterday. The Board of Public Works had its usual weekly meeting. The meeting of the Sewer Committee was adjourned till this morning.

AT THE CITY HALL.

Board of Public Works. MATTERS CONSIDERED AT YESTER-DAY'S MEETING.

At the meeting of the Board of Public Works yesterday. Mark Jones and others were heard in the matter of storm-water on Pico street. It was stated that at times the water flowed along the street in such volumes as to rise considerably above the crosswalks.

The board decided to recommend that the question be referred to the Street Superintendent, with instructions to put culverts on Pico street between Sentous and Bush streets, so as to divert storm water from Pico street in such a manner as to divide the water equitably between the streets.

Some of the property owners in the neighborhood of Sixth street and Park View avenue were heard in the matter of the nuisance caused by stagnant water collected just southwest of that intersec-

Assistant Lownes, of the City Engin-cer's office, was called in and asked as to the best means of removing the water from the place.

Chairman Munson said he believed the water could be pumped out without great expense, with what is known as a Chinese pump.

The board decided to recommend that the City Engineer be directed to drain the water from where it now is, either by pumping or siphon.

Snowed Under with Business. MOMENTOUS MATTERS FOR COMMIT

TEEMEN'S CONSIDERATION.
The Finance Committee of the City Council will have a number of matters of a good deal of importance before it at the meeting to be held this morning. There is a request from the Merchants' Association and Flesta Committee, that the city contribute an apropriation for the general flesta fund. The committee has also been asked by the Council to take preliminary steps in the way of preparing plans for a new city jail.

There are also the recommendations from two or three of the departments of the city government that more assistance be al-two or three of the departments of the city government that more assistance be al-lowed for such departments. The Park Commission has asked for the employment of a man to maintain morality in the parks; the Fire Commission has urged the employment of an assistant to the chief engineer of the fire department, and the Board of Health is pressing the need of having three more sanitary inspectors, so the work of the department may be bet-ter done.

After pondering upon the above, and agreeing upon what sort of recommendations to make to the City Council for each, the committee will yet have before it the request from the Chamber of Commerce, asking a suitable appropriation so that the exhibit hall of the chamber may that the exhibit hall of the chamber hay be, for a time, kept open one evening in each week. Resides these there is the matter of the pelition asking that a proposition to vote $100,000 for a library, anuseum and art building, be included in the proceedings for voting echool and other bonds.

With a number of matters of lesser moment before it, the committee will probably have a busy session this morning Hydraulic Cement.

walks laid and curbs put in in front of their property on the various streets of the city would give more attention to the kind of cement used, as well as the proportions mixed with other materials, there would undoubtedly be fewer sidewalks and curbs going to pieces before their eyes. It is believed, however, that property-owners are looking into these matters more than formerly, and the extensive use of cement for the purposes above stated naturally arouses a good deal of interest in the matter of the result of using the cement of Southern California manufacture.

than formerly, and the extensive use of coment for the purposes above stated naturally arouses a good deal of interest in the matter of the result of using the coment of Southern California manufacture.

What is known as the Colton cement, manufactured at Colton, has withstood tests, which, as far as made, have been almost phenomenal, and if the tests made of it continue to compare as favorably with those made of imported brands, they will be highly estisfactory.

As has heretofore been explained in The Times, cement used in the city is tested with a machine constructed for the purpose, and operated in the basement of the City Hall. With this apparatus, briquettes of hardened cement, faving exactly one square inch of breaking area, are subjected to tensile strain, and the estain at which one of these is broken shows the tensile strength of it. There is also apparatus for crushing one-inch cubes.

In making the tests, the brand of the ement used is noted, the sand is required to be of a certain quality, and it is recorded how long a time has elapsed from when the briquette was made to the time of making the test. By comparing all the circumstances, the relative strength of the cement used under different conditions may be compared.

Briquettes made of the Colton cement and mixed "neat"—that is, without sand—have, after having been made the same length of time of one part of cement to two parts of sand, and allowed to "set." for the same length of time, a briquette was broken at a tensile strain of 509 pounds. After having been made the same length of time, the strain of sand, and allowed to "set." for the same length of time, a briquette was broken at a tensile strain of such as a briquette was broken at a tensile strain of such as a briquette was broken at a tensile strain of such as a briquette was broken at a tensile strain of the compare as favorably with the imported comment mixed the colton cement, which has had but a short time to "set," have shown a much higher tensile strength of cament than could be ma more slowly, may develop a much greater, ultimate strength.

The City Engineer has in the testing room a number of briquettes made of the Colton brand of cement which he intends to keep for a long time before breaking. The breaking strain after the cement has had from one to two years to "set" can thus be found.

Hollenbeck Park Lake. MEASURES TO PREVENT DRAINAGE INTO SEWERS.

MEASURES TO PREVENT DRAINAGE INTO SEWERS.

The City Engineer is engaged in devising a plan to prevent the leakage of storm-water from Hollenbeck Park lake into the sewer running under the lake. An investigation of the case has developed the fact that when the sewer was constructed, which was a nutpher of years ago, the specifications required the sewer work should be all "open trench," or in other words that none of it should be put in by means of tunneling from one section of the trench to another section a few feet away. The pipe that was put in is vitrified and is in lengths of two feet and is eighteen inches in diameter.

It seems however that, instead of being put in as it ought to be, a good deal of it was laid in tunnels of the kind above described and it is believed that on account of being so laid the joints were not properly cemented.

In order to locate the leaks it is the intention to place a strong light in one manhole and have someone get down into another and eight through after water has been turned into the lake. By so doing it is believed the leaks can be observed so that their locations may be found.

If there be only a few leaky places they can probably be repaired without

If there be only a few leaky places they can probably be repaired without great expense. If, however, the pipe is found to leak in a large number of places it will undoubtedly be necessary to uncover the whole pipe and cement the leaky places.

Councilman Teed Returns. President Freeman G. Teed of the City Council returned from his trip to Hono-lulu, reaching San Francisco on the luiu, reaching San Francisco on the steamer Mariposa yesterday morning. He was to leave for this city yesterday afternoon, and is expected to be home today. He had a short conversation with Deputy Wilde of the City Clerk's office yesterday morning by long distance telephone soon after his arrival. He said he was much improved in health.

City Hall Notes.

The Sewer Committee will meet City Justice Morrison reports for Jan uary the collection of fees amounting to $62.25.

It is expected that on the return of President Teed of the City Council the Republican members of that body will get together and arrive at some decision in the matter of the election of a plumbing inspector and also a meat inspector.

DIGIOVANNI ACQUITTED OF THE CHARGE OF MURDER.

Gerolanio Digiovanni, a young Italian, appeared before Justice Young in the Township Court yesterday afternoon for preliminary examination upon the charge of murder, but was discharged, the evidence for the prosecution proving beyond a doubt that the defendant was withou a doubt that the defendant was without blams.

It was shown that the defendant and two other Italians, Antonio and Glovanni Ponzio, lived together on a small ranch of some sixteen acres, near what is known as "Mother Brown's place" on the Mission Road. The brothers Ponzio, being unable to speak English, made few acquaintances in the neighborhood, but Digiovanni, who was known to his neighbors as "Jim, the Dago," was well liked by all with whom he came in contact. During the past year the trio raised chickens and peddled fruits, etc., but a short time prior to the date of the tragedy they turned their attention to farming. Soon after they took possession of the ranch, it became evident to their neighbors that the elder Ponzio was either an imbeelle or lunatic, and the "crazy Dago," as he was dubbed, was left severely to his own devices.

On February 5 has according to the

On February 5 tast, according to the stories told by eye-witnesses, Antonio and the defendant quarreled over some trivial matter, but after talking excitedly in their native tongue, separated and went about their business. About 2:15 o'clock in the afternoon, while the defendant was carrying a pail of water up to the house, Antonio suddenly appeared upon the porch with a revolver in his hand, and, after saying something to his partner, fired two shots at him. Neither took effect, however, and dropping the pail, the defendant rushed at and grappled with his assailant. After disarming him he, struck Antonio on the head with the handle of the weapon; but just as he did so, the crazy Giovanni appeared. Evidentic head him he, struck Antonio on the head with the handle of the weapon; but just as he did so, the crazy Giovanni appeared. Evidently believing that the defendant had attacked his brother, Giovanni rushed back into the house and armed himself with a shotgun. Meantime the defendant was backing away from Antonio, who hurled rocks at him, but just as the former reached the gate leading into the road, the latter made a rush at him, and the defendant after firing the three shots which remained in the chamber of the revolver at him, turned and fied, with Giovanni at his heels. Upon reaching Tim Lyons's saloon, the defendant ran ungrains, and Giovanni took up a position outside in the road. Lyons, "Kid" O'Brien and Goldsmith appeared at this juncture, and the crazy man returned to the ranch, where he was promptly disarmed. Antonio, who was found near the gate upon his knees, mortally wounded, but still eager to renew the fight, was carried into the house. He was subsequently removed to the County Hospital, where he died next morning.

The defendant, whose head was cut in several piaces by rocks, surrendered him self soon after the shooting.

Under these circumstances, the court concluded that the evidence was insufficient to warrant him in holding the defendant to answer, and therefore ordered that he be discharged.

RESULTED IN A NON-SUIT.

RESULTED IN A NON-SUIT.

In Department Six, yesterday, the damage suit of George Van Buskirk vs. H.

B. Eakins came up for trial before Judge McKinley and a jury, but was speedily disposed of, as the court granted the defendant's motion for judgment of non-suit at the close of the evidence for the plaintiff.

Plaintiff alleges that on September 21 last the defendant went before Grove S.
Bartholomew, a Justice of the Peace, and swore to a complaint charging him with having committed the crime of petty larceny. The specific offense of which he was accused was that of stealing a wagon, harness and other articles, valued at $40. The matter was subsequently transferred to Justice Seaman's court, and Van Buskirk, upon being arrested, was tried and acquitted there on September 29 last. He therefore sought to recover $10,000 damages for the alleged malicious prosecution and $125 attorney's fees, but the evidence failing to show any malicious intent on defendant's part, the case was non-suited.

On second thought the complainant in the case of grand larceny charged against Poundmaster Cripe concluded his action might have been hasty and ill-advised, and he has consented to have the case dismissed. the officers are warranted in keeping stock off from the streets, it is more than evident that the charge of larceny will not adhere to a case like that under discussion.

But there is a style of larceny of which there has been too much hereabouts that lacks all the weaknesses of mere theory and gets down to acknowledged facts. Some months ago Dr. Place suffered from it in the coss of some pigs from his ranch near town, and a few days since W. H. Mears missed a fine young helfer, whose mysterious disappearance is still unaccounted for. In either case, hor in quite a number of others which have come to the attention of inquirers, has there been any suspicion of official interference with the lost stock, it has gone through some well-concealed agency, and it has gone for good and all. There are rumors of a place to the southward where parties humolate-kine and kindred animals upon the block, keeping no discoverable record of their purchase; but as yet this feature of the meat bustness is rumor of a vague sort only. Continued depredations may lead to more careful investigation. Meantime stock-owners will do well to keep an eye out for the whereabouts of their animals.

From the chairman, Louis F. Vetter, throughout the committee is composed of workers, and they are prosecuting their labor of love with great energy.

To the committee is entrusted the task of fitting in amusement and entertainments during carmival week outside of the the pageants, putting in the finishing touches for the gradification of the citizens and visitors edite.

When the carmival begins, Monday, and 15 with the pageants of the gradient of the citizens and visitors edite.

When the carnival begins, Monday, April 15, with the reception of the queen of the feeta and court, and her assumption of despotte power, another committee will manage the details of this charming spectacle, but at night the Amusement Committee will provide a most mirth.

that her realm requires many officers, and it would be passing strange if they cannot in pomp and state outclass the present ofty government and give them a few points. There is considerable time to bring this evening's entertainment, which will embrace many other features, up to an unfque and classes standard.

Tuesday and Wednesday the Amusement Committee will dake a back seat, those days being filled with street pageants and musical features, but on Thursday right occurs one of the most dazzling events of the week, the carnival masquerade ball, to be given at the pavilion. It is expected to make it eclipse all former events of the kind on the Pacific Coast, and carte blanche will be the order in providing all its accessories. Given under the observant eye of Her Majesty, the Queen, it will be conducted in regal style. The plan for decoration of the immense hall most favorably considered by the ommittee at present is that of transforming it from celling to floor into a garden of tropical floral beauty. There will be prizes for the best-sustained characters and extraordinary precautions will be taken to make it of exceptionable character under the personal supervision of carefully selected committees.

It may be hinted that there will be no favitations sent out, but that it will be a subscription affair, with thekets not less than $5. The muste will be both concert and for dancing, and will be exceptionally fine.

Friday night the committee has under consideration w plan for an athletet tournament by electric light, something that has never been seen on the Pacific Coast, but which can be made a splendid feature. It is proposed to have bicycle races by local cyclers and distinguished professionals who will be here, some of the events being for ladies. There will be burlesque events, tugs of war, boxing, the climbing of several greased poles at the same time by joily maskers, foot races and many things that will find interest to the novel entertainment.

In order to thoroughly systematize the three principal events so far referred to the Amusement Committee, Chairman Vetter has appointed sub-committees as follows:

On Installaction of the Carnival Government—Judge Louis Gottischalk, John W. A. Off and Lionel E. Ogden.

On Athletic Tournament—William F. Kennedy, president of the Los Angeles Athletic Club; Adolph Frese and Louis Herzog, president and secretary of the Turnverein Germants.

On Carnival Ball—John T. Griffith, Maurice S. Hellman and Albert C. Jones. At the last meeting of the committee a communication from the Wheelmen's Training League was considered. It offered its services to the flesta management in parades, acting as couriers, and to take part in meets to promote interest during carnival week, asking in return to be recognized as the official league of the flesta.

The committee decided to thankfully ac-recognized as the official league of the flesta.

The committee decided to thankfully accept the generous offer of the league, but considered that the organization of the flesta on popular lines would preclude the advisability of recognizing any organization officially, as suggested.

Action was taken with regard to a proposal by Los Angeles Parlor, No. 45, of Native Sons, and La Esperanza Parlor of Native Daughters to take charge of the grand ball. The committee having already made such plans for the ball as could not be set aside at this time, this kind proposition it was decided could not now be entertained.

REV. T. F. STAUFFER. REV. T. F. STAUFFER.

The following testimonial from a man so widely known and beloved as Rev. T. F. Stauffer, pastor of the Faith Reformed Church of Lincoln, Neb., is a most positive proof of the wonderful medicinal power of Paine's celery compound, and its great superiority over ordinary sarsaparillas, tonics and nervines:

"For nearly a year past I have felt myself running down. My nervous system was gradually growing worse. I had slight symptoms of rheumatism, and was troubled a good deal at times with insomnia. I felt that something must be done, and a good deal at times with insomnia. I felt that something must be done, and concluded to use Paine's celery compound. After the first few days I began to improve, and I am very much better now. Indeed, I feel like myself once more. All symptoms of rheumatism are disappearing. I can sleep well. My nervous system is rapidly improving, and I believe a radical oure is being effected. Paine's celery compound is a splendid remedy, and I can conscientiously commend it to the suffering in like cases. I further believe that if this medicine were taken in time it would save many heavy doctor's bills. I have never used a remedy of any kind that met its promises so well and so readily."

Rev. W. J. White, D.D., editor of the Georgia Baptist, says: "My wife was in poor health. I think it a sort of general debility, which caused severe attacks of heart palpatation. She was favorably impressed with Paine's celery compound, and procured it at once. She felt benefited from the first bottle, and I see a decided improvement, which is gratifying. We have spoken of this medicine to several friends, and several have already used it upon our recommendation."

RECTOR OF ST. ANNE'S, NASHVILLE.

Rev. T. F. Martin, rector of St. Anne's Church, at Nashville, gives his people confidence in the great curative power's of Paine's celery compound. He says:

"During the Lenten season last year, which, on account of multiplied services, is very trying and laborious to a clergyman, I became so run down that I feared I would not be able to hold out to the ord. Having seen accounts of the efficacy of Paine's celery compound in similar cases, I concluded to try it. I was soon delighted to find that it gave me new vigor, and by the use of one bottle, I was enabled to get through the most laborious part of the season, including Holy Week and Easterday, with ease and comfort. I attribute my relief to Paine's celery compound. I keep a bottle of it on hand, and whenever I have a return of the feeling of exhaustion from unusual labog. I take a few doses, always with a pleasant sensation of relief."

"In my early days, by great and prolonged mental suffering, I broke down in health and became a dyspeptic, being obliged at one time to give up my work in the ministry, on account of fil-health. I am now 83 years of age, and during my long life have suffered greatly from dyspepsis, torpid liver, constitution and incomnia, at times thinking I should die for the want of balmy sleep, and it is a wonder to me that I am alive today, with all that I have been through.

"I have tried an endless amount of medicines but lately I have been taking Paine's celety compound, and have all faith in sits merits as adapted to my case. By the use of several bottles, I so far recovered my health as to consider myself a well man for my age. It regulates the liver, stomech and bowels, without any question. My appetite is now good, my sleep is refreshing, my liver active and bowels requisir, and my crutches not needed, as I can walk without a staff. I am daily increasing in strength and improving generally, and hope that my youth will soon be renewed, so that I can work at in by-gone days. People are surprised at my improved appearance and activity."

NEW YORK CITY CLERGYMEN.

Interviewed by a reporter in that city the other day, a large number of clergymen expressed the heartiest indorsement of Paine's celery compound. The interviews were published in the World. Here are a few of them:

Rev. H. L. Granliemard, pastor of the French Presbyterian Church, who lives at No. 143 West Sixteenth street, said:
"Thave frequently been relieved of nervous affections by the use of Paine's celery compound. I think it a most reliable remedy, and shall recommend it wherever I have an opportunity."

Rev. R. D. Winn, pastor of the Abyssinian Church, said: "My career as a minister of the gospel has been fasmpered by the fact that for years I have suffered from nervousness. I consulted several specialists, who treated my case for months, but I must say that during the past few weeks I have received more benefit from one bottle of Paine's celery compound than from all the other medicines taken."

The recent indorsements of t. e great remedy by Rev. Fr. A. Ouellet, Rev. Mr. Laird and other prominent divines have so recently been published that they are fresh in the public mind.

REDV. G. A. EMERRY.

REV. G. A. EMERY. Rev. G. A. Emery of Pittsfield, Vt.

Rev. G. A. Emery of Pittsheid, very writes;

"Palme's celery compound is the best medicine to be found, and I very cheerfully recommend it to all who are in a run-down or exhausted condition. I have twice used it with most satisfactory results. For five years my work has been very heavy, especially so during the last two years. My conviction was that unless I found something to help me, I must give up my work as a minister, but I took Paine's celery compound, and last year came out all right, without a vacation of so much as one Sunday. I recommend it to all as a wonderful nerve restorer."

"After twenty years of excessive labor in studying and preaching, I was elected to a position in a high school in Boston, but the work told on me, and I grew ill. The illness lasted for about a year and a half. But now I am so that I can see the end, and a more thankful man you neversaw. A gentleman who lived near me began to use Paine's celery compound, and it built him up. I thought of this, and soon I was led to use it, and it has brought me out all right."

eased, and I was in despair of ever being well again. At times the grave seemed very near. I can never describe my terrible sufferings, and it would have been a great relief to have exchanged worlds, but like every mother, I would look upon my baby boy and cling to life.

"Not having much faith in advertised medicines, it was with reluctance that I began to use Paine's celery compound, but after the first dose I slept well. My improvement was rapid. I took six bottles and gained between twenty and twenty-five pounds in weight, and how I am fieshy, ruddy-cheeked and clear-complexioned, the wonder of all my friends. I do my own work, and assist my husband in his labors as a minister of the gospei. I always tell the sick and suffering what this grand compound has done for me."

FOR ALL SUFFERERS.

Rev. Percy T. Fenn, rector of St. John's at Boonton, N. J., writes:

"It gives me great pleasure to commend the use of Paine's celery compound to all those who are suffering from nervous troubles. I had suffered for two years with nervous prostration, brought on by overwork and excessive study, and during this time had tried almost everything in the way of medicine, besides being treated by an eminent specialist in nervous diseases, but nothing helped me until I used Paine's celery compound. This remedy has been of great benefit to me, and I shall always recommend it to all sufferers."

The fact is, Paine's celery compound makes people well. Try it and be convinced.

A SMOOTH FAKIR.

Another Man Who Lived Without Work.

A Number of People Victimized the Operations of the Clever Swindler.

After Getting All that He Could Out-of His Dupes, He Quietly De-parted in Search of Pastures New.

Another takir has come and gone. This ime it was a big, fat German, who called imself J. D. Moore. He left very sud-ently yesterday afternoon, and now the olice are after him.

denly yesterday afternoon, and now the police are after him.

Moore came here a month ago, and took a room at the Santa Clara lodging-house, No. 369 North Main street, from where he sent his spies out in search of the innocent, to whom he would promise employment, collect a deposit, and then do as he has done, "skip."

Bestides fleecing many wastresses and others who toll hard for a living, he has awindled the acquaintances he made since his arrival here from Chicago.

Moore has been working quietly, but it was the same old dodge, and was not long in coming out.

The authorities first secured an idea of the man's business through Charles W. Anderson, who, with his wife and two sons, stays at the Hotel Los Angeles, on Los Angeles street, near Third street. Anderson, hearing of the fellow's generous offer, rushed to the Santa Clara lodging-house and applied for a position. Only a few weeks before, he and his family had been employed in the country. Work gave out and they returned here. On coing nouse and applied for a position. Only a few weeks before, he and his family had been employed in the country. Work gave out and they returned here. On going to room 4 in the lodging-house, he was met by the corpulent Teuton, who initiated him into the secrets of the railway eating-house system. He told Anderson how he had worked for Harvey for four-teen years; how he was just about to return to Denver, to reorganize the help in the Depot Hotel, which he said Harvey had just purchased, and added to the great system. He exhibited a typewyitten letter, purpossing to be from Fred Harvey, manager of the railway eating-houses, the instructions of which were that Moore go ahead in employing all the first-class help available, such as waiters, waitresses, porters, chambermalds. Young women were especially needed, he said, though he would engage the services of all good help who applied.

especially needed, he said, though he would engage the services of all good help who applied.

Mr. Anderson made the application for work on Tuesday, ten days ago. After Moore had shown his "credentials," outlined the work and given the applicant everything he knew, and much that he did not know, Anderson became carried away with the proposition. Moore said he thought he wanted Anderson to take charge of the eating-house at Lamie, N. M., Then the applicant suggested that his wife and two sons also be given work.

"Why, yes," said Moore, "your wife can have any position she wants in the hetel, and the boys can attend to the lunch counter and cigar stand. Now, you come up here txincorrow," he continued, "and we will settle the matter, and you and your family may go right away and take charge of the house."

Delighted at the fisttering prospects, Anderson went home and imparted the glad news to his family. The next day, according to agreement, he and Mrs. Anderson went to Moore's lodgings, to close the deal. Nothing, was done beyond a general discussion of the job and its prospects, yet that did not daunt the applicants, who were sorely in need of work. They were, however, led to believe they were to be sent to New Mexico in a day or two, and were told plainly by Moore that he would advance them money on, their wages if they did not have enough with which to pay their fare. This was no doubt a dodge on the clever swindler's part to find out whether Anderson had any money, or enough to pay as a deposit for the position. Anderson and his wife left the man's room in a happy frame of mind. They went home and had their sons give up their small-paying positions, preparatory to "attending to a lunch counter and cigar stand in the "Hotel Lamle," wherever that might be.

The days flew by and there was no show fan immediata consummation of the deal over that might be.

The days flew by and there was no show of an immediate consummation of the deal, although Anderson visited the fellow daily. He postponed the matter from day to day until Anderson became suspicious and told Chief Glass.

and told Chief Glass.

A Times reporter was also informed of the suspicious movements of Moore, and kept a sharp watch for developments. Thursday afternoon, under the guise of a waiter out of employment and "dead broke," he went to Moore's room. The big, jolly-looking German appeared at the door and, after "sizing up" the reporter very carefully, begged him to call between 4 and 5 o'clock the next day.

"You see," he said, "I have just received word from Mr. Harvey to meet him at the Hotel Raymond, and I shall go out there at once. Tomorrow afternoon I can see you, and will probably give you the position you ask."

The large number of young women that had been going up to see the fellow during the last ten days still continued. A Times reporter secured the services of a waitress and sent her up to get a job. This was in the forenoon.

She rapped in the door and out came a lame young man with a well-regulated "jag" aboard. The young woman excused herself and asked if there was an employment agency about.

"Well, er—yes," he replied, "you see Mr. Moore, in here, is hiring girls, He's all right; he's got plenty of money to send them anywhere and I am backing him, too. He's Fred Harvey's manager. Mr. Moore is greatly worrfed," he continued, as he braced himself against the door, "about this item which was published in the paper. Did you see it?"

And he handed the young woman a newspaper clipping, which questioned the honesty of Moore's methods. She pleaded ignorance, whereupon the lame, drunken fellow asked her to return on the morrow, as his friend Moore could do nothing while such false stories were being circulated.

"We'll have the man in jail in two hours," he went on. "I know who he is;

"I haven't another cent in the world. I thought he was straight, but I have been bilked."

And Larin timped into the drug store to get some more brandy in which to drown his sorrow.

It was learned that Larin is the young man who met the waitress at Moore's door in the forencom Moore had incidentally got him to drink, for he was always around him. His backing, of which he spoke to the waitress-detective, had vanished, and he admitted he had been "most gloriously taken is."

The next man with a similar tale of woe was J. C. S. Thompson, a young Englishmen staying at the St. Elmo, familiarly known as "Chappie." Mr. Thompson, on being asked for information concerning his former friend, Moore, slowly drew a note from his vestpocket and asked if it was worth anything. It read like this;

"On demand, I promise to pay J. C. S. Thompson $27 (twenty-seven doffars.)

(Signed)

The capitalistic young man, who is just out from Chicago on a tour, said he had loaned the scoundrel the money only the night before. He met Moore through Larin, but was thoroughly convinced he had for the first time been played successfully as a "sucker."

And the waitress went down stairs.

The olive tree nurserpmen say this is the liveliest season they have ever had. Mr. Howland estimates that the agreage of olive orchards in California will be increased by over 6000 acres this year. At the present rate of sales, Pomona will have sold all her hundreds of thousands of nursery olive trees by May 1.

The visit of John E. Packard, of this place, in Chicago, during the next few weeks, is a matter of interest to everyone in Pomona Valley, and a large number of people all over Southern California. Mr. Packard has gone to introduce, as far as possible, the pickled olives of this section, in Chicago. He has long had reason to believe that some active missionary work in behalf of the new varieties of Southern California of dollars worth of this sale of thousands of dollars worth of this work in behalf of the new varieties of Southern California olives will help the sale of thousands of dollars worth of this fruit annually. The Santa Fe Railroad officials in Chicago are so assured of the wisdom of Mr. Packard's scheme that they are hauling a carload of Pomona olives, in casks, bottles and hogsheads, free to Chicago. Mr. Packard will pay his own bills and conduct his own campaign on his own plans. He proposes to have twenty or thirty different ways of bringing the attention of wholesale and retail grocers to the merits of our olives, of introducing them to the tables of the leading restaurants and hotels, and to inviting investigation as to the wonderfully nutritious qualities of our olives, by the medical fraternity and hygienists of Chicago and that region. THE WORK OF A YEAR

The Chamber of Commerce Annual Meeting.

Closing Speech of the Retiring President and Opening Address of His Successor.

Reports of the Secretary and Super intendent Presented—A Very Favorable Financial Showing-Committees.

The annual meeting of the Chamber of Commerce was held yesterday afternoon in the assembly-room of the chamber, and was in every respect a noteworthy gathering. In the first place there was an unusually large attendance—about fifty being present—of solid, substantial business men representing the financial, commercial and trading interests of the city. The address of the outgoing and incoming presidress of the outgoing and incoming pres dents, as well as the various reports sub-mitted, were very satisfactory, for while outlining large possibilities of the cham-ber's usefulness during the ensuing eighonths, attention was drawn to what had been accomplished in the past. And this in no spirit of self-laudation, but rely as a raison d'etre for such an instin and as an incentive to renewed exer-during the coming fifteen months.

In the very nature of things an annual neeting consists more in winding up the affairs of the year than for dealing di-rectly with any vital question which ordi-narily might be dealt with by such a body narily might be dealt with by such a body of business men. It is doubly significant, then, that the occasion should have been chosen by a number of leading citizens, representing each phase of the business world in Los Angeles, to present a petition dealing with the question of a new line of railroad between this city and San Francisco. And more striking still, perhaps, immediate action should have been taken upon it.

The motion of Mr. Graves, too, that Judge Erskine Ross, so well and favorably known throughout Southern California should receive the support of the chamber by petition to the President that he be appointed as Circuit Judge, in the district recently created by Congress, and which bill only awaits the President to become law, was one most heartly indorsed.

With these two exceptions the meeting was largely of routine character. THE NEW OFFICERS.

At 3 o'clock President Freeman called meeting to order, and after the min-of the last meeting had been read, e said:

"As president of the board of directors the chamber, I beg to report to the sumbers that, in accordance with the rovisions of the constitution, an election of officers and directors for 1895 was held in the office of the directors January 9, 595, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. At 3:15 p.m. ae board of directors met and counted to ballots, with a result that a majority of the votes cast were found to be for the otherwise:

of the votes cast were found to be for the following:

"For president, W. C. Patterson; for first vice-president, Charles Forman; for second vice-president, T. D. Stimson; for treasurer, Andrew Mullen; for chairman of Committee on Commerce, D. Freeman; for chairman of Committee on Manufactures, K. Cohn; for chairman of Committee on Immigration, O. T. Johnson; for chairman of Committee on Lands, J. A. Graves; for chairman of Committee on Mines, Hancock Banning; for chairman of Committee on Ways and Means, F. W. King; for chairman of Committee on Statistics, W. B. Cline; for chairman of Committee on Hosels, F. S. Munson; for chairman of Committee on Hosels, F. S. Munson; for chairman of Committee on Hosels, F. S. Munson; for chairman of Committee on Parks, J. H. Davisson. On the completion of the count, these gentlemen were declared by the board the duly elected officers and directors for the ensuing year, and the president was instructed to convey to the chamber the result of the election." RETIRING PRESIDENT'S AD-

ident Freeman then delivered his President Freeman then delivered his annual address, as follows:

"In the midst of an era of business depression, financial distrust and general discouragement prevailing in nearly all sections of the union, it is my peculiar good fortune to be able on this occasion to congratulate my fellow members of this chamber on the prosperous year that has just closed in the city of Los Angeles. It is hard for us who have weltnessed the extraordinary amount, of building in progress, and have seen new enterprises springing up on all sides, to realize what an unhappy state of affairs prevails in most other sections of the Union. It is also hard to realize that during the past also mard to realize that during the past twelve months Southern California has been quietly and comfortably passing through a vertisable dry season, formerly an object of dread, but now, through the beneficent workings of our irrigation eys-tems, robbed of most of its evil possibili-roads work actively resumed in the chamber in some practical form.

In this connection I desire to say that my work in the chamber and in other public bodies, as well as experience in life generally has convinced me of the value of agitation. The criticism is frequently passed on organizations like the Chamber of Commerce that they spend a good deal of time in talk, and that they sometimes pass resolutions; the latter act being often referred to as though it were little less than a misdemeanor. The resolutions of a public body are its carefully considered and official expressions of opinion. The daily newspaper, which is a most valued member of modern human society, expresses its opinion, or the opinion of its individual editor, some 365 times in the course of a year on every conceivable variety of topics, and those opinions are usually read and studied with interest. This being the case, the reason does not appear why a substantial organization of business men and property-owners should not speak its mind if so disposed, nor why its utterance should not command attention. While it is true, on the one hand, that mere talk will not build railroads, nor protect harbors from being monopolized, nor establish tourist hotels, nor construct better highways, yet, on the other hand, there are not many instances nor construct better highways, yet, on the other hand, there are not many instances in history where such ends have been accomplished without a good deal of talk beforehand. The Chamber of Commerce of Los Angeles certainly does a good deal else besides holding public meetings to agitate for important reforms, but the latter feature of its work is, nevertheless, one that is not to be passed over lightly. "The chamber has several times in the course of the year addressed communications, petitions and resolutions to the postal authorities at Washington, asking for better facilities for the handling of the local mail of Los Angeles city. It appears that eternal persistence is the price of anything obtained from the national government for this far off corner of the ernment for this far off corner of the Union, and although our efforts have been thus far only partially successful, for the Union, and although our efforts have been thus far only partially successful, for the postal accommodations are even yet shamefully inadequate to the needs of the city, the chamber must continue this crusade until better results follow.

"In my last report I spoke with approval of the formation of associations of fruit-growers for the handling of the citrus product by the growers themselves, and declared my belief that if they were conducted on business principles they would solve for the producer the great problem of the producer the great problem of the producer the great problem of the producer the same problem of the producer the same and the healthier tone of the Eastern market under their discreet management. This plan has proven successful in other States and will undoubtedly gain a permanent foothold here.

"I take pleasure in congratulating our friends of the Merchants' Association on the happy manner in which the fiesta was observed last spring under their auspices, and I have no doubt that the entertainment this year will far exceed the iast. This annual festival will not only contribute to the material welfare of the section by bringing many thousand tourists into the city, but will also promote pleasant good-fellowship and an effective esprit du corps among our people. It should receive hearty support from every citizen.

"The past year has marked an important and commend the last that he could be the commend on the producer of the last commend on the pleasant good-fellowship and an effective esprit du corps among our people. It should receive hearty support from every citizen.

"The past year has marked an important energing producer in the producer of the last commend that the content and the post of the last marked an important and the post of the last marked an important and the post of the last marked an important and the last mark should receive hearty support from every citizen.

"The past year has marked an important epoch in the history of the chamber, in its change of quarters from Mein street to the corner of Fourth and Broadway. The present exhibit hall of the chamber is about twice the size of the former one, and is in fact the largest and finest permanent free display of products to be found anywhere in the world, except at the Colonies' Display in London. It is something for every citizen of Los Angeles to show to his Eastern friends who visit here with a very pardonable pride. The rooms and offices of the chamber were planned and furnished on a liberal scale by the board, with a view to impress strangers with the fact that this was a substantial institution in a prosperous community. There was no attempt at luxury or elegance, but everything is comfortable and convenient. The removal and refurnishing involved nearly three thousand dollars of expense, which sum was partly met by a withdrawal from the reserve fund. The money thus withdrawn should be pald back as soon as possible through the obtaining of three hundred or four hundred new members, and I make no doubt that the Membership Committee for this year will see to it that they are secured.

"It has been my good fortune and honor through a verticuble dry season, formerly an object of dread, but now, through the besselhent workings of our irrigation systems robbed of most of its evil possibility. The property of the dry season, formerly a good crop and an eager market. The grain yield will prove plentiful. Addition to come, for the order of the city contains to come, for the order of the city contains to come, for the order of the city contains to come, for the city contains to come, for the city contains to come, for the city contains the construction of new buildings in the city mand. The general condition of business, both wholesale and retail, is brisk and healthful. While on the whole, we have no complaint to offer on the year that has just passed, the outlook for the one better things.

"In my report a year ago I spoke at some length on the subject of good roads, advaing that the chamber undertake a persistent campaigre in the direction of complaint to offer on the ways throughout and well-kept highways through the obtaining of three more dose not always expect to an ocham there does not always expect to an ocham the results are always expect to an ocham the proposation which we advocated was served. It was clearly shown that actually resulted, would only the city as a persistent campaign in the city and the proposation which we advocated was even the proposation of a system of highway through the proposation which we advocated was even the proposation which we advocated was even the proposation of the proposation which we advocated was even the proposation of the proposation which we developed which finally resulted in the filling vighlant activity upon the part of every one to whom specific duties may be as signed. Our industrious, accomplished and faithful secretary, and our incomparable superintendent of exhibit cannot do everything and be everywhere, as we are at times almost inclined to expect, neither can your president become enemirely ubiquitous. Very much will therefore depend upon the efficiency of the standing committees. They will be expected to exercise more than a passing interest, in such matters as a reason from pected to exercise more than a passing interest in such matters as are referred to them for investigation. Promptness in the dispatch of all business should be our unafterable petroy. In the appointment of committees, the practice will be encouraged of making selections from the membership at large, thus not only relieving the somewhat burdened directory, but enlisting the interest and awakening the enthusiasm of as many persons as possible. Punctuality in attendance upon the regular meetings of the chamber in the future, as in the past, will prove to be a wonderfully potent factor in assuring success.

"The serene independence and fairness which hitherto have been promise.

"The serene independence and fairness, which hitherto have been prominent characteristics, and the stern refusal of the chamber to lend its influence to partisan suggestion or individual schemes, must at all 'hazards be maintained. The labors of the chamber "must be rigidly directed to the promotion of the interests of the entire community.

"Its impartial and reliable dissemination of facts, have brought to us large numbers of people, whose coming has measurably increased the aggregate wealth and culture of Southern California. This good work should still continue, carefully emphasizing what I believe to be true, that there are here at least as favorable opportunities for the profitable investment of capital as can be found in any other section of the United States. Care should be exercised, however, as to largely encouraging the immigration of persons depending for livelihood upon salaried positions. Since the knowledge of our sunny skies and equable climate has extended to the ends of the earth, multitudes come hither in the hope of enjoying these conditions, and at the same time securing lucrative employment. The outcome is, the supply so far exceeds the demand that many and sore disappointments result.

"To our sister organizations—the Board of Trade and Merchants' Association—both of which, within their subgress have richty

"To our sister organizations—the Board of Trade and Merchants' Association—both of which, within their spheres, have richly earned the confidence of the community, I extend a cordial greeting and bespeak with them, fraternal co-operation. "It would consume too much time were I to touch upon the various makters of public interest, to which the chamber will be called upon to lend a helping hand. They will have proper consideration in regular sequence during the year. There is one great need, however, which in importance risss so far above the others, that I may be pardoned for referring to it specifically.

sequence during the year. There is one great need, however, which in importance risss so far above the others, that I may be pardoned for referring to it specifically.

"The desirability for a deep-sea harbor, and in fact, the necessity for such an improvement, are so well understood as to be conceded by all, and admit of no controversy. The benefits which would result to Los Angeles and the contiguous country, would be incalculable, but more than this, the work would be of supreme national importance. As has been most pertinently stated by the clitizens' harbor committee, From San Francisco to San Diego, a distance of 500 miles, there is no deep-sea harbor. All the nation's trade with the Orient must go either by the Northern Pacific lines, through sections of the country often closed by snow, or by the Central Pacific, over heavy grades, into the monopoly-guarded port of San Francisco. The shortest, most reliable route, by the easiest grades across the continent on American soil, is from the Pacific near Los Angeles, to Galveston or New Orleans, Whenever a deep-sea harbor is constructed in this vicinity, a heavy tax will be lifted from all Oriental-American traffic."

"When the Nicaregua Canal is comstructed, as it surely will be, a suitable harbor connecting with our transcontinental lines, which are shorter and easier than the northern routes, will be next to indispensable.

"The United States government, through successive commissions, composed of its most distinguished engineers, has selected and confirmed San Pedro as the most favorable site from commercial, strategic and economical points of view. To expect the government to construct a harbor at a point other than selected by its engineers, is to expect a reversal of all practices and traditions of the past. At San Pedro a harbor can be constructed at a very much lower cost than at any other location which has been considered, and it will there be supplemented with an inner harbor, upon which the government has already expended a million of dollars.

"At San Pedro protection to vessels from storm would be more adequate, and the adjacent topography is better adapted to the ereation of such military fortifications, as in fustice should be established for the protection of this portion of the coast. It has advocated fan Pedro because, in the light of all these facts, and in the presence of the traditions of the republic, the alternative which seems to confront us is, a harbor at San Pedro or no harbor at all. Notwithstanding what many of us understood to be a submission of the matter in good farth, to the arbitrament of the membership of the Chamber of Commerce, and the result of which was an overwhelming yote in favor of San Pedro, the Southern Pacific Raliroad has continued and still continues, to us its powerful influence to obstruct the passage of an act establishing a deep-water harbor along the lines of the reports of the United States government engineers.

"I have no personal feeling against that raliroad, for in my somewhat extensive business relations with the company I have been treated with uniform fairness and consideration. I cannot, however, make my judgment accord with the selfish procedure of that corporation, which is striving to defeat the overwhilmingly expressed will of the people of this whole zection. Frankly, it would require no great tension upon the credulity of any thinking person, to entertain the suggestion which has frequently been made on late, vix., that the Southern Pacific Company could argue itself into the bellef, that, if the commerce of the south and of the Orient could be made to pass us by, and be confined largely to the Larbor at San Francisco, it would require a double harvest by reason of the fact that it there largely controls the maritime commerce, and as a rallroad, it is there a complete monopoly.

"The transcendent duty of every enterprising citizen is to spare no efforts to commerce, and as a railroad, it is there a complete monopoly.

"The transcendent duty of every enterprising citizen is to spare no efforts to neutralize the force of every obstruction, which is attempted to be thrown allwart the pathway of the progress of our beautiful city and country.

Eastern friends, a constant succession of committee meetings, conventions, visits of distinguished guests, the undertaking of public work of all kinds, the answering of a steady stream of letters of inquiry and the maintenance of the general business of the organization, which its large membership, now over eight hundred in number, naturally complicates, all these things mean work and very hard work for the six helpers enumerated above.

"The figure for miscellaneous includes printing, keep of horse, lighting and heat, office supplies, postage, etc.

It will be noted that the reserve fund has been diminished by the amount of $1362.30 in the course of the year. This money was used chiefly in the purchase of furniture and in substantial additions in the equipment of the chamber to be worth $2218.15, against $800 a year ago. The exhibit materials now owned by the chamber are shown by the same inventory to have cost $5993.77, and are now valued at Heile, 4f any, less than that sum. "The year that is now beginning promises to be a prosperous one for Southern California as a whole, and is likely to wintess the continued improvement and progress of its most representative body, in concluding, now, my fourth year of service to the chamber. I beg to express my gratitude for the kindly consideration and encouragement which I have always received from the board of directors and the members generally, and in particular to the retiring president, Mr. Freeman. Through two of the most important years of the chamber's history he has served as its head and front, and no one knows so well as those who were nearest to him how much the organization owes to his untiring devotion to its success."

*REPORTS OF COMMITTERS.

The reports of standing committee followed. The Committee on Marufactures reported that during the year many lesters had been received from people desiring to examine the manufacturing possibilities of this section, but a large number of them were of an empracukable character. "Your committee fails to understand," the report ran, "why a man who starts a factory, presumably for the purpose of making money, should consider himself entitled to a free site, a building and plant without charge, a bonus of cash and several years remission of taxes, while the man who sets out forty acres of oranges gets nothing of the kind. According to the census of 1890 there were then established in this city some 747 manufacturing concerns, representing a capital of $6,807,088, and employing 4950 hands. These figures have increased 20 per cent. since then."

The committee alluded to the reputation achieved by Los 'Angeles as a city of homes, and stated that a strong sentiment exists among many residents against undue stimulation of manufacturing interests on the ground that it may damage the city for residence purposes. The committee on lands, on thotels and on Parks submilted

SUPERINTENDENT'S REPORT. Frank Wiggins, superintendent of ex-hibits, submitted his report, which deal with several matters of unusual interest

Frank Wigg'ns, superintendent of exhibits, submitted his report, which dealt with several matters of unusual interest, particularly making a Scuthern California exhibit in the East and at fairs wherever held. The report was as follows:

"In consequence of my absence the streater part of last year, it is only possible for me to review the display from the 1st of September to date; and that began with the installation of the present exhibit, which comprises only a very small portion of the original material used in the old exhibition hall. The unique attractiveness of the present installation was made possible only by the great fairs which left on hands property that naturally fell to the chamber's permanent exhibit; the principal part of which has been arranged so as to form features that will stand for years to come as monuments of the enterprising work of this county in the greatest advertising event of the century. These same events have enabled our neighboring counties to add to the display material thatswould otherwise have been impossible. Los Angelès county, World's Fair and the Midwinter Fair committees have them moth Bottle of Wine, The Ear of Corn, the Nickel Walnut Tower, the Kiosk of Fruit, the Relief Map, the Model Farm, Revolving Album and 790 jars of display goods, besides the furnishings and fixtures that represent an outlay of seven or eight thousand dollars, which are worth as display features, double that amount. The arrangement of the permanent exhibit is such as to give Los Angeles county the most prominent portion in the center or court space, while with tables arranged along the east wall, gives her an opportunity to show her products in plate and in plass displays, leaving ample room for San Diego county, under the gallery to the left of the main entrance, where she displays her products of dried fruits, raisins, lemons, honey, etc., on terraced tables; above which hangs a well-executed painting of her back country. To the right of San Diego county round gallery columns, are displayed her fish products and grains of her back country. To the right of San Diego county San Bernardino county has installed a termond table 4 mg/s and 1 alled 4 mg/s and 1 try. To the right of san Diego country. San Bernardino country has installed a terraced table 4x25 well filled with a jar display of her fruits and manufactured products, together with her citrus and dried fruits. Facing the table and separated by a six-foot aisle, stands her revolving album showing the homes and ranches of her prosperous citizens, while in the gallery just above this space she makes a diplay of 100 specimens of her mine productions. On the main floor to the south of San Bernardino county, Ventura county will soon occupy the corresponding space now used by Long Beach. by resolution, he moved that the Chamber of Commerce petition President Clerkland to appoint to the position Julge E. M. Ross, than when no more worthy appointes could be chosen.

M. L. Gruff, in seconding the motion, said that not only in the southern countries, but slong the entire Pacific Coast, Judge Ross was recognized as one of the ablest junists. Throughout the entire country Los Angeles has attracted attention by reason of his just administration of the law and the maintonance of order. Mr. Graff thought that when the eight hundred odd members of the Chamber of Commerce, through their officers, ask for the appointment, it certainly would have due weight with the President.

The motion being put, was unant-mously carried.

"We, the undersigned citizens and tax-payers of Los Angeles county, realising that the present is a critical moment in the onward march of progress in the his-tory of this city, would respectfully re-quest that you call a meeting of all the members of your chamber, to discuss the expediency of sending a committee at once to consult with Messrs. THE NEW HOFFMAN CAFE.

Finest Thing of its Kind on the Coast.

The Splendors of Aladdin's Palace Nowhere-It Opens Today-Everybody Invited to Call in Today and Inspect It,

The new Hoffman Cafe, Nos. 213 and 211 South Spring street, will open its doors for business today, and visitors who go through ment that in many of its features is a little ahead of anything in this part of the country. It has been fitted up, it is said, at an expense of nearly $40,000, which may or may will be the "town talk" for many months to

The front part, or main vestibule, is a cigar store, and without doubt as fine a one as there is in the United States. The woodwork is paneled birch, of most elaborate design and finish. The counters and shelving, as well as the walls and ceiling, are all of this beautiful material, except where beveled and French-plate glass, fine mirrors and art glass take its place, and there is a profusion of these. In the west wall there is also of jet black American onyx, that must be 50x70 inches in size, and cost, it is said, $400, which advertises the "Telegrato" (sgars, and which is a real curiosity. There is a magnificent chandeller and thirty-odd electric lights, with various kinds of unique shades, distributed about in other places. The floor is tile, an inlaid mosaic of beautiful pattern.

To the right of the main vestibule is a long hall leading back to the grillroom, and stairs to the upper floors. This hall, the stairs, the grillroom itself, and sil the private dining-rooms, are carpeted with the finest velvet carpets. The grillroom is about thirty feet square and is beautifully furnished, one of the pleasing features being a fine mantel and open fire. Between the grillroom and cigar stand is the bar, and back of the grillroom and all that. The kitchen, is provided, of course, with every modern convenience, and on a scale corresponding with other things.

Upstairs are half a dozen different-sized dining-rooms, that may on occasion be thrown together, and as many more that are strictly private, in so far as communicating with others is concerned. It will be possible to accommedate parties of almost any size, and it is easy to see that this is going to be a famous and favorite place for banquets.

It is the ambition of the proprietors of the Hoffman, who, by the way, have a steward who has had thirty years' experience in strictly first-class places, and a "chef" that is not excelled in his line anywhere in the world. They intend to give their patrons what they want, prepared in a thoroughly artistic manner, and s

ANGELENO HEIGHTS. ANGELENO HEIGHTS.

Col. A. L. Kimball, who is about to acquire the half interest of Everest Hall in the Angelene Heights tract, will probably put this property in good shape and place it on the market. Angelene Heights is one of the most attractive sections on the hills, with a most commanding view over the surrounding country. A portion of it is already compactly built up, with some of the best residences in the city.

NORTH OF LOS ANGELES NORTH OF LOS ANGELES.

Mention was made in these columns last week of the miserable condition of Los Feliz road, which runs along the west side of the river north of the city limits. Feilz road, which runs along the west side of the river north of the city limits. The City Engineer has been making a survey for a proposed bridge across the river at Walnut street, about one-half mile north of Buena Vista street. A scheme has been put forth to extend Los Feliz road from a point where the bridge would interset the west bank of the river, southerly along the side of the bluff to the pumping station of the City Water Company, and in time to improve the road southerly from there to Buena Vista street. This, it is claimed, would, to a large extent, afford the relief asked for in the construction of the bridge, and probably at a less expense.

In this connection why would it not be a good idea to build the electric railroad which the people of Tropice and Glendais are working upon along Los Feliz road, and thence across the river? This would give an independent line a good chance to enter town, which it could not well do through East Los Angeles. With an electric line the attractive section along the Los Angeles River north of the city would come into good demand for suburban homes.

HIGHLAND PARK.

Apropos of suburban homes, a tract of 400 acres has been subdivided and is being offered in small parcels at Highland Park, just beyond the city limits on the northeast, on the road to Pasadena. It is known as the Montezuma tract, and is located in a romantic little valley, just this side of Eagle Rock Valley. This is a portion of the old Hunter Highland tract, which was subdivided and a considerable portion of it sold off some years previous to the boom. There is no doubt that the building of the electric road to the Arroyo Saco Valley will bring into the market a number of residence tracts in this section, which is one of the most attractive stretches of country in Southern California, and at the same time within a few

it is nothing but a place for dead men's bones. He says the soil is almost rich enough to be transported as a fertilizer, and that for lemons, oranges, sugar beets and other products it will ere long astonish the world. The water to irrigate it is to come from the Colorado River.

KANSAS BOOM TOWNS.

is to come from the Colorado River.

KANSAS BOOM TOWNS.

It may remembered that Kansas had a real estate boom about the same time that Southern California was afflicted in that manner. The difference between the results of these two-booms is very striking and furnishes a good evidence of the results of these two-booms is very striking and furnishes a good evidence of the results of these two-booms is very striking and furnishes a good evidence of the resources of this section, which have enabled it to come out so successfully from an experience which has bankrupted a good many other sections. M. A. Lodge, a Kansas City real estate man, has given the San Francisco Call the following graphic description of the condition of some of the boom towns in Kansas:

"In no other State in the Union would it be possible to find a similar condition of affairs such as exist in Kansas, regarding boom towns, which once were populous and known to everybody, but which are now described and ripe with decay. There is a bill now before the Legislature of that State for the vacation of at least four of such places—Frisco, in Morton county; Wendell, in Klowa county; Kamopolis, in the central portion of the State, and Runnymede, in Harper county. Of the four lam only familiar with the history of Kamopolis. Its founders embraced among their number J. Warren Keffer, ex-Congressman, and F. M. Bookwatter, one of the most wealthy and prominent men in Central Ohlo, and a number of other prominent citizens of Springfield in that State. The town was said to be located in the exact geographical center of the State, and was boomed as the future capital. Immense buildings were erected, but every drop of water consumed by the 5000 inhabitants was bauled from the Smoky Hill River, some distance away. The town was the most widely advertised of all the boom towns of the State, and was possessed of newspapers, banks, projected streeters lines and electric-light plants, woolen, and flour mills, carriage and wagon factories and numerous other enerprises

REAL ESTATE IN SAN FRANCISCO.

The probability that the much-taiked-of San Joaquin Valley Raifread will soon become an accomplished fact has led the San Francisco papers to indulge in extended articles on the influence which this improvement is likely to have upon the real estate market in that city, and on the record of the market in the past. The San Francisco Examiner publishes an interesting table, showing the fluctuations of

The Pomelo or Grape Fruit.

Among the damage that was done by the recent severe frost in Florida was the destruction of the pomelo or grape fruit of that State. This fruit has been rapidly growing in favor among Eastern people during the past couple of years, and large prices have been obtained for it. The taste is an acquired one, as few people like the fruit has been grown only on a very limited scale in Southern California, and mostly for ornamental purposes, so that those who have been desirous of obtaining some of the fruit have had to content them selves with the shaddock, which is an other variety of the same fruit, but by no means the same thing as the grape fruit. In a recent article in the Colton News William C. Fuller of that place shows that

Board of Horticulture, Prof. B. M. Lelong, describes the fruit as "pomelo, synonym, grape fruit (California,) a variety of shadock; fruit of a pale yellow, resembling the citron; skin very smooth, pulp sub-acid, with a decided flavor of grape—hence its name—tree very ornamental; semi-

As a semi-dwarf the pomelo grows to-ward a standard tree when budded upon the sweet or sour stock, and rapidly attains to a standard tree when planted as a seed-

Prof. Van Deman, United States Pomo logist-in-chief, adopts the name pomelo with its synonyms, grape fruit and citrus pomelanus, with the description: "Al-though closely related to the shaddock, this is a fruit of excellent quality. The name, 'grape fruit,' was given to it from the fact that the fruit hangs so closely along the branches as to crowd each other, and in the distance look like huge clusters of grapes." Again, he affirms, "It is cer-tainly to be regretted that the names 'grape fruit' and 'shaddock' are applied to the pomelo, as they are neither appropriate nor absolutely correct."

Mr. Fuller is of the opinion that as the pomelo is grown in Florida and California outside of its native habitat, the better classification would be that which is adopted by the chief pomologist at Washington, reserving the name pomelo (synonym grape fruit) to apply to some meri-torious modification of the pomelo pro-duced by culture in this soil and climate.

The Zante Current.

The Times has frequently drawn the attention of horticulturists to the fact that the Zante currant offers inducements for its cultivation in this State, especially for its cultivation in this State, especially since the 1½-cent duty has been imposed on this fruit. The Atlantis, a New York paper published in the modern Greek language, has in a recent number an interesting article on the Zante currant, showing the effect of the new tariff on the importations of this fruit and the benefits derived by California raisin-growers. The Fresno correspondent of the Examiner furnishes the following translation of this article: this article:

"When the American Congress placed the duty on our current raisins we pre-dicted that there would be a considerable decrease in their importation. That our prophecy is, unfortunately, being fulfilled is clearly shown by the official statistics, shore than 10,000 tons less having been imported up to this time this year than for the corresponding period of last year. If the Greek government had taken proper measures while the Zante currant tariff, so strongly advocated by the representatives from the State of California, was before the committee in Washington, we should still be enjoying the free entry of our products into the United States. The business had already assumed great importance and was rapidly increasing.

"At this very important time we saw raisin-growers from California go of their own free will to Washington to advocate the tariff on Zante currants in their own and their country's interest. But neither the warning of the president of the Driedfruit Exchange of New York or the telegrams of the Greeks, in the United States could arouse Prime Minister Tricoupi from his lethargy long enough to realize the danger threatening our important industry.

"'After telling the Greeks to let him alone and he would fix matters to sult everybody, he now finds himself compelled to put in operation the law to destroy part of every year's crop to adjust the supply to the demand. He is also unexpectedly brought face to face with the facts that the bounty has to be paid for the raisine destroyed and that the treasury is empty. The embarrassment of his present position might have been avoided had he sent to Washington a more competent man than Mr. Jennadhilons to oppose the shrewd and well-managed petition of the Californians, or else allowed the Greek residents of the United States to use their influence for the benefit of their brethren at home and not have boasted that he could manage the matter alone.

"Goods of last year's crop now in the warehouses of New York are reduced to about four thousand barrels. Sales of last fall's crop have been very small, for the reason that, adding the duty of 1½ cents per pound, makes the cost fr means the same thing as the grape fruit. In a recent article in the Colton News William C. Fuller of that place shows that the authorities all over the world have mixed up the name, use and description of these fruits in quite a perplexing manner. The British Encyslopedia, while describing manner also the young shoots," applies to it the names of pomelo and "forbidden fruit."

In the Standard Dictionary the shaddock, citrus decumans) is described as nearly allied to the orange, or the tree, and the fruit varies in size from the smaller grape fruit, or pomelo to the pomelous.

The pomelo is described as a small variety of shaddock, grape fruit, and the grape fruit, as the shaddock (citrus aurantium variety decumans) as a "rather strong and large-growing tree." This description, as far as their growth in California, does not apply to the pear-shaped variety of shaddock, but to the grape fruit, or clustering variety.

Barry described the shaddock as of great size, striking in appearance, but not of value except in confectionery. This undoubtedly describes the pear-shaped variety, the fruit of which grows not in clustering variety.

misleading.
The doctor says that Mr. Cooper dug up his walnut trees. Can he'tell us what variety they were? This is very important, before determining whether the location or soil had anything to do with their failure. I am under the 'impression, from what I have read of Mr. Cooper's place, that he had planted largely to the old Los Angeles nut. I would also like to know if the Mayette trees that have been grown at Rivera, bear nuts up to the standard; if so, they can be sold here in competition with the Grenoble. Or was the soft-shell given the preference because the trees grow faster and bear earlier and heavier grops?

Information which I have been able to get in New York this week about the present crop of California nuts sold here, only confirms what I said before—the soft-shell is not equal to the Mayette. A good many brokers bought California nuts this year under the agreement that they would equal the Grenobles. They were disappointed in the quality of the nuts and do not hesitate to say so. I take a certain pride in California's products and consider it my State, and when I am told that California cannot grow wainuts equal to the Grenoble, I rather differ, as I claim it is because the true Mayette has not been given a show.

Sulphuring the nuts, as done by some of the French and California growers, is bad, as it seems to injure their keeping quality. The Grenoble, they claim, is naturally a bright-shelled nut. The Mayette nut is grown in the southeast of France, in the foothills of the province of Isere, of which Grenoble is the principal town and shipping point, 150 miles inland from the Mediterranean, with a climate very likely not influenced by fogs, which are thought necessary to make the California coast that makes sulphuring of the shells necessary in order to have them look bright like the Grenobles here mixed with inferior nuts, which is done either before and owing to the short crop that more California nuts were bought in the East than ever before. A good many brokers speculated in them, payi ordinary freeze, with enough snap to the to send up prices a little, means that some of the oranges have been sufficiently touched by frost to make them unmarketable, but it makes no difference in the appearance of the trees; they go on from year to year with their glossy green leaves. This winter's freeze, however, is no ordinary one, and not only has every orange in sections been frozen and spolled, but every leaf on every orange tree has been killed. They are hanging withered on the trees now, as brown and yellow as maple leaves in autumn, and every eit of wind brings down a shower of them. The leaves are dead beyond recall, and they must all full from the trees within a week or two. It is not more than two or three times in a century that this singular spectacle can be seen—millions of orange trees as bare of leaves as northern forest trees in winter.

From the point of view of the consumer, the oranges are as good now as they were were. The taste is the same, and most of them are as hard and solid as they were before they were frozen. The natives will not eat them; they say that they are very unwholesome, and that a number of people have then made ill by eating them. Still, they continue to send a few north, in the hope of selling them at some price, and few northern people could tell that they had been frozen. As long as there is no taste of fermentation the oranges are wholesome enough. The writer has been esting them as usual for several days, without any ill effects. It is impossible to walk through an orange grove without kicking the fallen oranges aside to make stepping-places. There are still some on the trees, but they will all come down, for when an orange is badly frozen it falls. These thousands and thousands of bushels of fallen fruit are entirely free to the public; any one can walk into a grove and help himself to it. If all the boys of Ohicago were brought down here and turned loose in the groves they could hardly make an impression upon the fruit that lies on the grown. The palces were for two cars the people shivered with cold and gloom.

The young packers who came down from the North are not worrying over the situation. The sudden stopping of work left them without much money, of course, and most of them immediately left, their boarding-houses and went to camping out, which is cheaper. Camping out is no hardship in Florida in midwinter. Any old shed does for a sleeping place, and if all else fails, they are in the stores buying cans of oysters, cans of beef, cans of everything edible. They are full of songs and jokes, and good spirits, and they give a humorous tings to what is for most Floridans a very serious business. When the mall comes in from the North these boys crowd, the postofine. They have written to their friends for money to carry them home, and they are waiting for it to arrive. Such letters always come slowly, particularly to a man who is very anxious. When the letter fails it means more days of canned oysters and frozen oranges.

The way the orange business is done distributes the losses very unevenly. Here Smith across the way has 1000 bearing trees, producing say, 1200 boxes, and there are several methods by which he may do not them ripen, then employ one of the pack them fruit. The natural one of the pack them at so much how and ship then to New York to the command ship then to New York to the command ship the time to not profitable eroy, the entire crop. Anothre way is to sell to a buyer early in the season at so much a box. Florida is full of such buyers in November and December, and it is easy to sell. But this contract provides that the fruit shall be delivered in good marketable condition, and not an orange in the State is in good marketable condition. So this grower also loses his crop, and sometimes that is not the worst of it. The writer met a man yesterday who had 5000 boxes on his trees, and who sold them a month ago that so much a box, receiving $750 on account to bind the bargain. With this little advance he went about paying up all his billing buy the frees, and h pear before the new leaves, so the experts say.

How to dispose of the remains is a question. Yesterday the writer saw five funerals. There are five packing-houses in sight from his plazza, and about the middle of the afternoon men came out from each of them with shovels and began to dig five great graves in the sand. Soon other men on the inside opened the nearest windows and shoveled out hundreds of bushels of oranges into the graves. It was the easiest way of disposing of fruit that showed signs of decay. When the graves were filled the oranges were covered over with sand. This grove—dishwater from the house, old shoes, cans, decaying wood, muck from the lakes—spoiled oranges only add one more to the list.

In a less elastic community the total loss of the crop would be a terrible blow. In a blow here, but nothing to what it would be in the North. Instead of saying, "My wife and children will starve," the Floridan says. "Money is going to be scarce this year." This is the worst that can happen. No man can starve there. Everywhere the orange limbs were propped up to support the tremendous weight of fruit. A thousand fortunes would have been made here within the next three months. A single cold night wiped it all out, and yet the people are not cast down. They regard is as one of the fortunes of war—a loss to be recouped with the next big crop. Most of the growers will be a little oramped for money, but not worse than that. With the very poorest there will be no suffering. Last year's crop was so good that few people are badly in debt, and many have money laid by. Any owner of a good grove can find credit somewhere, though not always with the local merchants. The comparatively small capital of the country merchants is one of the blessings of this crisis. The storekeepers have not money enough to "carry" their customers year after year, as merchants carry the big sugar planters and cotton planters in other parts of the South. So no one is largely in debt for supplies. People pay as they go, a large proportion of them, and have nothings to far.

No marketable oranges left, but plenty of pluck and good spirit, and uninjured trees to bear well in the future—that is the situation all over Florida.

hatching chickens by incubator should see to it that the small chicks are fed every two hours during the first week, every three hours during the second week, and after that three times a day. The point to be almed at is to induce the young birds to consume the greatest possible amount of food, by which means they grow and mature years randly.

The Country Gentleman condemns the advice which has been given by some writers laying claimato knowledge on the subject, to soak grain in lime before feedwriters laying claimato knowledge on the subject, to soak grain in lime before feeding it to poultry, in order to furnish them with the mineral constituents that they need. The best form in which to give chickens the lime they need is in the form of bone ash. The waste bones of the household may be burned in the kitchen stove and then placed in an open vessel, where the fowl will have ready access to it. In this way a fock of fitty hens will consume all waste of a good-sized family. For large flocks a contract should be made with a local butcher. In this form the lime is digestible, and the phosphoric acid in the bones will also be valuable. It is very certain that no indigestible matter given to a hen can help her in any way to make the shells for her eggs, all the material of which must necessarily pass through the blood before it can reach the ovary.

It is a common experience among poultrymen that rape and hemp seed are useful to the laying hens and increase the number of eggs. Now both these seeds are rich in lime, the ash of the former having if per cent. of it, and that of the latter 23 per cent. And in this regard it might be mentioned that the seed of the esparcet, which is eaten by fowls with great avidity, has more than a third of its ash lime. Thus the culture of this plant, one of the leguminoseae, may be recommended as very useful to poultry-keepers. It is a common crop on the small French farms, under its common name, sanfoin, and the fowls eat the whole plant, which, like all its family (the clover,) has a great quantity of lime in it. Clover itself is thus useful to fowls as a green crop on this account. This is the only way in which lime can be given to fowls healthfully.

that it takes from nine and seven-eighths to ten and one-half pounds of milk to make a pound of cheese, and that the patrons a pound of cheese, and that the patrons get from 75 to 81 cents per hundred for their milk, much depending upon how late they kept up their production in the fall, the latter milk bringing the best results.

Breeding Cows. (E. P. Smith in American Cultivator: Not a few dairy men depend upon others to raise their dairy stock

(E. P. Smith in American Cultivator: Not a few dairy men depend upon others to raise their dairy stock for them, and their herds are increased only in this way. By this method one constantly introduces new blood in the herd and prevents too close inbreeding. But, everything considered, the most successful dairy men find that it is much better to raise the stock for the dairy than to fill up the vacancies by buying. One can keep up the standard of the flock by raising their heliers of the best cows, sired from good stock, and the hereditary good dyalities can be transmitted from generation to generation.

In buying cows to fill up the vacancies which constantly occur one must run the risk of many failures. No matter how good a cow judge the man may be, he will find many times that his knowledge is all at fault, and the cows which he buys at handsome prices are not just what he needs.

The question of buying or raising dairy stock is a very important one to young dairy men. The dairy man who starts in with the idea of buying all the new stock will take less interest in his work, and will only strain to get the most milk and cream out of the animals while they are profitable, and then dispose of them for what they will fetch. The herd is consequently degenerating all the time, and the standard must be kept up at great expense. The young man who starts in to raise his own stock for future use will feed from the beginning, with the idea of improving the herd by care, good feeding, good breeding and by selection. He will also take an interest in the improvements which result from his own work and intelligence. In time he will become a model dairy man. He will extend the same careful thought and method to all of his other work.

A young man should procure the best stock to begin with that his means will allow. And it is better to buy five good ows than a dozen inferior owes. Then airive to raise the standard of the herd by good breeding. Let every sire be a good animal, and then raise all the heifer calves that promis compare prices obtained for the best specimens of horsefiesh offered on that day with those obtained at some of the English sales of Hackney and draft horses in 1894, which, though good there, must be anything but encouraging, by comparision, to breeders and importers of the same in this part of the world.

At a sale of Hackneys belonging to the Prince of Wales, fifty head sold for an average of $40 each, the highest price being $2350, which was paid for a brood mare, the next highest being within $100 of that figure.

At another sale of forty-five head of Hackneys belonging to F. Kelly, near Sheffield, in the county of Yorkshire, an average of $569 was obtained, the highest priced animal at this sale also was a brood mare, which sold for $3175. I have at hand the prices of only two other Hackney seles, and they rank among the lower-priced ones. Such prices would, however, be considered very good here. One hundred and eight head were sold at these two sales for an average of about $233, with prices ranging as high as $1800 for a single animal. Then, how do prices here compare with those for which draft horses sell in England? Very unfavorably, I fear.

About an average sale as to prices is one where twenty-eight head of Shire horses were sold for an average of $320, the highest-priced animal in the prices obtained. A sale somewhat above the average was held at Nyn Park in the last week of November, when thirty-one animals sold for an average of $554 each. The sale included six yearing coits and four yearing filles, also two foals of each sax, so that more than one-third of the animals were under 2 years old. The highest-priced animal and sour yearing coits and four year-old fily sold for $1500, and a three-year-old for $1575, while a coit of the fatter age brough the same figure. These are not by any means the highest price that darft horses have been sold for of late years in England and Scotland, yet they are high prices when compared with such prices as could be obtained by breeders.

Among other sale report wool ram sold for $1385. This class of sheep, and also Southdowns, are said to have brought better prices than in 1893, which may be accounted for by the increased demand for a class of sheep suitable for the trade in frozen mutton, of which so much is now exported to England. This trade calls for a good, plump carcass of meat, with round, thick thighs or "legs of mutton," good loins and a shoulder thick enough to yield to the carver a good slice, when it comes to the table. Turning now to cattle, we find the same conditions' prevailing in regard to comparative prices as in horses and sheep. Ask a man $200 for a bull here, and, however good the animal, he would be apt to mark you down as one bereft of his proper senses; yet there were five sales of shorthorn cattle in England, and one in Scotland, that made an average of over $200 a head, including calves; a total of 312 animals being sold in the six sales, an average of fifty-two for each, so that they were not by any means small lots of cattle that brought these prices. The largest number was sold by the estate of the late Hugh Aylmer of West Dereham, whose herd was favorably known wherever good shorthorn cattle were known. Nintty-one head were sold at an average price of $208, which included young calves, as before stated. Mr. Aylmer's cattle were chiefly, if not altogether, of "Booth" blood. Of different breeding was the herd of the late Earl Bective, whose herd of fifty-seven head made an average of $225.50. This herd consisted principally of "Mates" blood, the late Earl being one of the buyers at the New York Mills sale in 1873, when he bought the Tenth Duchess of Geneva for $35,000 (in currency.) a purchase, I believe, that he never had occasion to regret, however large the price may appear to be at this time.

There is one sale below the $200 average at yearling roan buil that brought $1075 in this sale, when eighteen buils and buil calves sold for an average of $206, the tota of seventy-one animals in the sale averaging $186, which prices go to show th let go as soon as they got tired of it, and had found by experience that there was not as much money in it as they expected. Such men don't make cattle-breeders. To be a successful breeder of live stock for any length of time, a man must consider, and have a greater liking for the animals than for the money they are likely to, make him. Not that he ought not to try all he can to make a financial success of the business; he would be in the wronr, if he did, not.

The South Americans have undoubt diy found out that much—and more. For that reason they want a class of cattle that will make the best returns far the food consumed. The cattle they are buying and importing have been bred for generations with that object in view. The rapid assimilation of food insures; a quick growth, early maturity and quitif returns in both beef and dairy cattle. Hence comes a profitable improvemen; in the use of good, well-bred bulls. By well-bred and good pedigrees I mes in ahmals that have unbroken succession of good animals in their lineage for several generations back, such as have been bred and used by breeders who he ive made a name for themselves and their cattle, who

Passing of a Plague.

(Oregonian:) The grain plant louse, which created much alarm in Oregon has season and did not a little damage, is reported as already at work in the winter wheat fields at various points in the Wil-amette Valley. This is but one of the numerous forms of aphis so common and so destructive. We have them on our rose so destructive. We have them on our rose bushes, cabbages, fruit trees, hops, etc., each variety adhering to the peculiar vegetable growth upon which it feeds. When the ravages of the aphis in the orchards and hop fields are considered, it is no wonder great alarm was felt when the grain louse was discovered in the wheat fields.

The experiment station at Corvallis has been studying the peet, and recently issued a builletin in which its nature and habits are explained. The insect is greensh in color and resembles the green aphis familiar on fruit trees and rose bushes. It first attacks the stocks and then the heads of wheat, barley and oats, expracting the specific or with green grasses. It spreads over a whole territory with greet randitive heins a very upon grasses. It spreads over a wh ritory with great rapidity, being prolific breeder. prolific breeder.

It has been proved by actual experiment that the grain aphis produces live young when three days old at the rate of four a day, and that in three weeks the descendants of one mother m 000. It has invaded various as country at different periods, wheat crop one-half, and has peared. It is evident from this peared. It is evident from this that it may be destroyed by unfavorable climatic conditions, and it is known to be attacked by a host of parasites, such as "ladybugs," syrphus files, "aphis Hon" and numerous minute files, which are parasitic on plant lice. As these beneficial forms also multiply very rapidly, they accomplish the work of extermination most thoroughly. So far as preservation of a field already attacked is concerned, there is practically no remedy. Grain badly infested may be cut for hay, and assurance is given that stock will eat it. As a measure of repression after the crop has been cut, the burning of the stubble, straw, weeds, litter, waste, etc., is recommended, as well as the cultivation of the land immediately and the growing of no grass or grain crop on that piece of land the next season. These are measures looking to the extermination of the aphis between seasons, but the rapid breeding of the few that might escape would seem to render such measures practically valuelees. It seems that the natural enemies of the aphis must be relied upon to exterminate it, and the history of its life elsewhere shows that they attend to this business most thoroughly.

AN EARNEST PLEA IN FAVOR OF CREMATION.

Festivities for Washington's Birthday-Merry Card and Coach Parties-Briefs and Per-sonal Mention.

PASADENA, Feb. 15.—(Special Correspondence.) The lecture on "Gremation" by Dr. Kate S. Black, at the Universalist Church, Thursday evening, as one of the course under the auspices of the Fortnightly Ciub, was attended by a large number of people, who expressed much interest in what the speaker had to say on the subject. The lecturer has made a study of the subject and spoke understandingly of it and showed why a more general adoption of cremation as a means of disposing of the dead would be for the health of the living. The temetery system, which permits the reopening of graves for the substitution of new bodies at the expiration of a few years, permits no rest. The remits the reopening of graves for the substitution of new bodies at the expiration of a few years, permits no rest. The results of cremation and earth burial are the same, one requiring one to three hours with no resulting harm to the living; the other from five to eighty years, resulting in nothing but harm to the living. She stated facts concerning great cemeterles in various cities of the world, which are disease-breeders, and spoke of the rigid care exercised in preventing smallpox in our midst; yet we have never had a death from smallpox, nor, so far back as any health records tell us, a single case of smallpox. While 30 per cent. of our mortality is from consumption, we do not do one thing to prevent, its spread. Consumptives are permitted to expectorate on our streets, and we do nothing. A large per cent. of this mortality we put, in our cemeterles, sowing the seed for an increase of the disease. The common health demands oremation of all bodies dying of infectious diseases.

The house was prettily decorated for the occasion in designs especially suitable and artistic. The contestants occupied eight tabes, and after an interesting contest were awarded prizes significant of the game. The ladies' first prize was won by Mrs. Pierce, a heart-shaped silver tray; gentleman's first prize, a silver heart-shaped key-ring, by Mr. Pyle; ladies' second prize, heart-shaped steel pin, by Mrs. Lippincott; gentlemen's second prize, silver umbrella clasp, by Mr. Arthur. Dainty refreshments were served, including sandwiches, chocolate, olives and charlotte russe. The evening was greatly enjoyed by all present. The guests were: Mr. and Mrs. S. E. ECHO MOUNTAIN.

From the appearance of the throng on Echo Mountain yesterday it would seem that the valley for a time at least, was greatly depopulated. A glance at the hotel register showed that Massachusetts was represented by seven. Illinois furnished twelve; four were from Minnesota to give evidence of the zero weather they left behind them, as well as five from her sister State, Michigan, while New York contributed five. Besides these there were one or more representatives from the States of Wisconsen, Iowa, Pennsylvania, Oregon, Colorado, Ohio, Indiana, Washington, D. C., and last, but not least, California sent her contingent of twenty-five, all of which displays the fact that Echo Mountain and Mt. Lowe, with their innumerable attractions, are becoming very generally known, and from the commendatory remarks that were uttered, it was very evident all were highly pleased with the vast panorama spread before them.

Quite a number took saddle animals to ECHO MOUNTAIN.

Ties for the railway extension have been arriving during the last fortnight, and yesterday the poles for the trolley wire began to arrive, which gives evidence of the early completion of the line to Crystal Springs, the half-way point between Echo Mountain and Mt. Lowe.

(News:) Two small boys on Moline avenue, who have not the fear of the Pasadena Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animais, if it exists, in their minds, indulged yesterday in the amusement of setting two tarantulas, which they had captured, to fighting. One of the venomous insects soon lost its grip and surned up its numerous toes. Tarantula fights are a favorice pastime with the Mexican population of Southern California.

Thursday evening the home of Rev. R. M. Webster, on North Delacy street, was invaded by about forty of the members of his congregation, who had planned to supprise him and celebrate the completion and occupancy of his new dwelling. The evening was passed in conversation, with music, compressing plano solos by Miss Myrtle Webster and Miss Lillie Reese, and a vocal colo by Mr. Swerdiger.

One of the operating surgeons says that in Wednesday's edition the report of the death of August Arnold seemed to convey the impression that death resulted from a hemorrhage, after the operation. He says that, on the contrary, a large amount of blood was found, both in the ebdomfinal cavity and the intestines, while practically none was lost during or because of the abdominal section.

While Ed Downey, was going along South Raymond avenue, near the operahouse, Wednesday evening, he was assaulted by an unknown man, who jumped upon him from a shaded fidding place and struck at him with something, presumably a knife, as it put the coat sleeve of the expected victim. He does not say upon what points he requires information, but it must be upon the profits, we think. Upon that point we cannot give positive information but we certainly should not caponize a chicken that would bring a shilling, Yankee money or British money, per pound at any weight.

When prices went down so that a five-pound chicken would not sell for more than 50 cents, we might consider the matter. But then it would be too late, for the operation should be performed when the chicken weighs from three to four pounds alive. We are speaking of the larger breeds, for it is only those that can be caponized profitably. But when they are of that size it is basy to estimate their value when the have gained two or three pounds more. The prices here vary about the same each year, a little higher at certain seasons than others, but only increasing a certain percentage.

We know also that the operation, even if painless, is a check upon the growth for a few weeks, although it postpones maturity and eventually may result in a greater weight. But what we as shrewd Yankees desire to know is whether the increase in weight and the increase in price will pay for the food required during the extra months of growth, and of that there seems to be considerable doubt, even in face of the assertions of dealers in caponizing instruments.

The Meetings of Revivalist Yatman.

SAN BERNARDINO, Feb. 15.—(Special Correspondence.) No entertainment since the ladies of the Presbyterian Church gave the "Deestrict Skule," last winter, has been such a success in every way as was the "Belies of Blackville," given at the operationse last evening, by the ladies of the Guild of St. John's Episcopal Church. The house was literally filled with the best people of the city. The entertainment was a genuine ministrel performance, with every essential detail. The songs were humorous, and the negro dialect preserved as far as possible. The jokes were fresh, most of them of local application, and were highly appreciated. Not a thing occurred to man the success of the entertainment, which opened with a chorus, "O Drive That Bee Away," by the entire company. In view of the attack upon the ladies by the Ministerial Association, the following remarks at the close by O. P. Slost, the manager, were heartily cheered:

Miss Nelly Hilligoss rendered the "Three Warnings" in an effective manner. Mr. Yatman's subject was, "Is It Well with Your Soul?" REDLANDS.

REDLANDS, Feb. 15.—(Special Correspondence.) Thursday afternoon's session of the Board of Trustees lasted several hours, and George A. Cook, the president of the Board of Trustees lasted several hours, and George A. Cook, the president of the Domestic Water Company gave quite a comprehensive report of the company's doing. In order not to adopt rates so that the company can net a fair rate of interest on its investment, the board endeavored to get at the exact cost of the company's plant.

An adjournment was made to 7 o'clock in the evening.

The company's superintendent, H. W. Allen, was present at the evening session. It was shown that that portion of the company's plant in Terracina cost $3300, and that this suburb uses 500,000 gallons of water per month.

I. N. Hoey and B. W. Cane were present, and used their influence to secure lower water rates. Mr. Hoag thought the value of the company's plant abould not be based on what it cost, for it was built in boom days. The board considered that three-quarters of its face value would be a fair estimate of the value of the plant, which would equal about $170,000.

As regards rates, the company proposed charging 15 cents per 1000 gallons for all over this conts per 1000 gallons for all over the quantity. The board was unanimously in

A Woman Arrested on a Charge of Yurder.

SANTA BARBARA, Feb. 15.—(Special Correspondence, Eva Biss was on Thursday night arrested in Santa Barbara on a requisition from Analiston, Ala., where she is under indictment for murder. The police of the country have for some time been on the lockout for this woman, who was finally traced here, and City Marshal Hopkin has been shadowing her for five weeks past, pending the arrival of the proper papers. Last year a young girl died in a disreputable house in Anniston, the victim of majpractice, and the attending physician fled to Mexico, whence he was brought back by an officer two months ago. This woman, Eva Biss, who owns several other aliases, was wanted as a witness and accomplice. She was discovered lying ill in a respectable house in Santa Barbara, to which her ladylike manners and apparent respectability had procured her entrance, and where she was receiving the best medical aid and care. City Marshal Prother of Anniston, who has been in Sacramento procuring the necessary extradition papers, arrived in town Thursday night and served them upon the woman, who had already been notified by telegram of his journey hither, and professed her intenties of giving herself up. The trustees of the Santa Barbara School District met Friday, morning at 10 o'clock, with the full board present. The clerk was instructed to ascertain the cost of putting trees in the different school yards; also to get bids for ten cords of wood for the different school buildings. Those now in use are in a very dilapidated condition, and it was not thought advisable to do altogether without them. RIVERSIDE'S AWAKENING.

It is generally, if not universally, conceded that the late awakening of Riverside to the necessity of the improvement of the streets and the better lighting of the city, is one of the most hopeful signs of future prosperity to this city of orange groves. The unpardonable inertia which has characterized those in authority, and the penurious ideas which have heretofore obtained among some of those who pay the most taxes, and which is, during the wet weather, made the streets mudholes, and in dry weather filled the air with flying dust, has at last been thrown off, and Riverside is to emerge from its lethargy. There is more life and animation apparent than has been exhibited since the beginning of the financial depression. The two public meetings held, and the action taken, is the general topic on the street and at the fireside, and every man one meets looks as if his ship has been sighted, or that he had been born again. A dejected countenance has given way to one beaming with hope. Your correspondent has already asked and received much specified in Riverside, and with the large circulation of the Times here it con do much has been awakened from its dormant condition, to the end that Riverside may keep step in the march of municipal improvements. A strong committee, composed of George N. Reynolds, George D. Cunningham, W. J. Mointyre, J. Järvis, W. A. Hayt, M. J. Some of the members of this families and endure by taking her of this faculty are wholly opposed to football. There will be an interesting, if not exciting, discussion of the game from a humane standpoint. It is not considered likely that the faculty will take a stand against the game, however, although some of its professors would be likely that the faculty will recommend to the athletic committee that the suggestions made by the college presidents be incorporated into the body of rules for football in the institution.

Yet it is extremely doubtful if these limitations on the game will be adopted, even if the faculty does recommend them. This is because the Athletic Committee of the faculty, and not the faculty as a whole, has the say. The faculty can only recommend. The Athletic Committee is known to be a unit in favor of the game. It is composed of Profs. A. Alonzo Stagg, Oliver J. Thatcher, Robert F. Harper, Marion Talbot, Carl D. Buck, Frank-lin Johnson and Miss Kate Anderson. It goes without saying, of course, that Mr. Stagg has no pruning knife for the game, and it is known that Profs. Thatcher and Harper are both enthusiasts. Miss Talbot and Miss Anderson both believe in foctball. Prof. Buck has always seemed to favor the game, and used to be enthusiastic over it, while Prof. Johnson is not known to be opposed to it. One member of the athletic board said the other day that he was not in favor of putting many limitations on the game. "I do not believe," he said, "that we ought to accept the ruling of laymen, who think it brutal when 2 man is thrown down on the football field."

He acknowledged that he was in favor of playing the athletic clubs. He also raid that if the ruling of the college presidents were adopted, an attempt would be made to make it a deedletter in its application to students now in the university, in his report for the academic year, shows that he as no footpers of this faculty are wholly of to fcotball. There will be an interesting violence or with shrewd violations of the rules to gain thereby great advantages.

"What is called the development of the game has steadily increased its risks until they have become unjustifiable. Naturally the public is losing faith in the sincerity of the professed desire of coaches, captains had promoters to reform it.

"It should be distinctly understood.

captains and promoters to reform it.

"It should be distinctly understood, however, that the players themselves have little real responsibility for the civils of the game. They are swayed by a tyrannical public opinion—partly ignorant and partly barbarous—to the formation of which graduates and undergraduates, fathers, mothers and sisters, leaders of society and the veriest gamblers and rowdies all contribute.

"The state of mind of the spectators at a hard-fought football match at Springfield, New York or Phitadelphia cannot but suggest the query bow far these sessemblages differ at heart from the throngs which enjoy the prizefight, cockfight or builfight, or which in other centuries delighted in the sports of the Roman arena. Several fatal accidents have happened this year to school boys and college students on the football field; and in every strenuous game now played, whether for practice or in an intercollegiate or other competition, there is the ever present liability to death on the field."

WOMAN'S AUXILIARY.

EPISCOPAL MISSIONARY WORK ERS IN SESSION.

Addresses by Revs. B. W. B. Tayler A. S. Clark, Henderson Judd and A. G. L. Trew—What Has Been Accomplished.

The first quarterly meeting of the Associated Branches of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Episcopal Church, was held in St. John's Church yesterday, atternoon, and was largely attended by the churchen of the city. The littany was read women of the city. The litany was read as a preliminary devotional service by Rev. D. F. Mackenzie. Rev. B. W. R. Tayler presided, and made the opening address. He spoke of the beginning of the Woman's Auxiliary, in the recognition of the fact that there were a large number of women who desired to be of some service in the general work of the church but who were prevented by dechurch but who were prevented by dechurch. cents; 1000 pounds sirioin beefsteak, 12% club run to Monrovia and Duarte tomorrows; 1000 pounds round steak, 8 cents; 1000 pounds round round a united offering from all the altar soeleties and guilds in the church. In his own parish he had three societies, which, from the beginning of Advent to the end of Lent, worked as branches of the Woman's Auxiliary. He urged every woman to do something toward extending the kingdom of Christ, and questioned the sincerity of the professions of those who were not animated by something of a missionary spirit. Every Christian should be at heart full of missionary zeal.

Rev. A. S. Clarke, rector of Christ Church, was the next speaker. He spoke of the work of what is known as the "Junior Auxiliary," a society like that of the women, wide-spread and vast, but which was composed of the younger women and gris, and which worked upon the same lines. Mention was also made of the bables' branch, which was insugurated in this diocesse a year ago, and which has quite a large membership of bables, who contribute I cent every week, and urter the little prayer: "God bless all the missionaries all over the world." The speaker touched most eloquently on the possibilities for service which lie undeveloped in the child, and which were brought out by teaching them their responsibility at an early age.

Rev. Henderson Judd gave a most interesting description of the "Church Mission's House," an elegant and spactous juilding of five stories, which the Episcopal Church has lately erected at the scorner of Fourth avenue and Twenty-see, and street, New York. In it are centered all the various missionary activities of the church, the Board of Missions, the Woman's Auxiliary, the Church Building Commission, the Brotherhood of St. Andrew, the Bible and Prayer-book Societies, and other enterprises for extending the usefulness of the church. The description was a most graphic one, and left a strong impression upon those present as to the vast energies which the Episcopal Church in this country is putting forward for preaching the gospel to markind.

Rev. A. G. L. Trew, D.D., rector of the Church of the Episcopal Church in this country is puttin golden stream which upbore the ark of God's church.

The meeting was one of the most inter-esting missionary gatherings which has taken place in Los Angeles, and the Wo-man's Affaithary of the Episcopal parishes in this city will receive added strength and usefulness by reason of it.
